STOUT STATE COLLEGE

As the swift seasons roll, the rhythm of college life keeps pace.

Brilliant, clear September ushers in familiar faces --- and eager new faces . . .

to a rich panorama of sights and sounds.

As there is a pattern of time in nature, so too at Stout State College there is a time for learning and a time for fun.

The brisk, cold winds of January accent the busy life; days and weeks are filled with people and things, living and doing.

Lives are enriched through study, through the arts and crafts, and through worship

Students become responsible citizens in the discipline of sports . . .

by cooperating with their peers, and with the guidance of their instructors.

Till in warm, green June comes a measure of maturity
--the pride of achievement.

Another year has come full circle.

ACADEMICS

Understanding principles

Stout State College has long led in the number and excellence of her graduates in the major areas of home economics and industrial education and technology. Each year a large number of our graduates enter into the teaching profession and various phases of business and industry, filling many high, worthwhile positions in a wide choice of areas.

Although the curriculum centers around these broad areas, Stout also provides her students with a background of general education, a vital part of learning in every field. Departments are maintained in education, psychology, English and speech, science and mathematics, social sciences, physical education and music. Various departments are developed under each specialized field of home economics and industrial education and technology.

The graduate of the School of Applied Science and Technology is trained to meet the demands of industry and business in the rapidly changing American economy. The specialist in industrial technology learns the functions and techniques of semi-Gerald Jacobs and Allen Hovey demonstrate a part of the Tesla coil to their physics class. Students work as partners in demonstrations which are required.

Interested students note some distinctions as they are pointed out by Miss Blaug, one of the instructors of the new course in philosophy which is now being offered at Stout. The course has been enthusiastically received by a number of students.

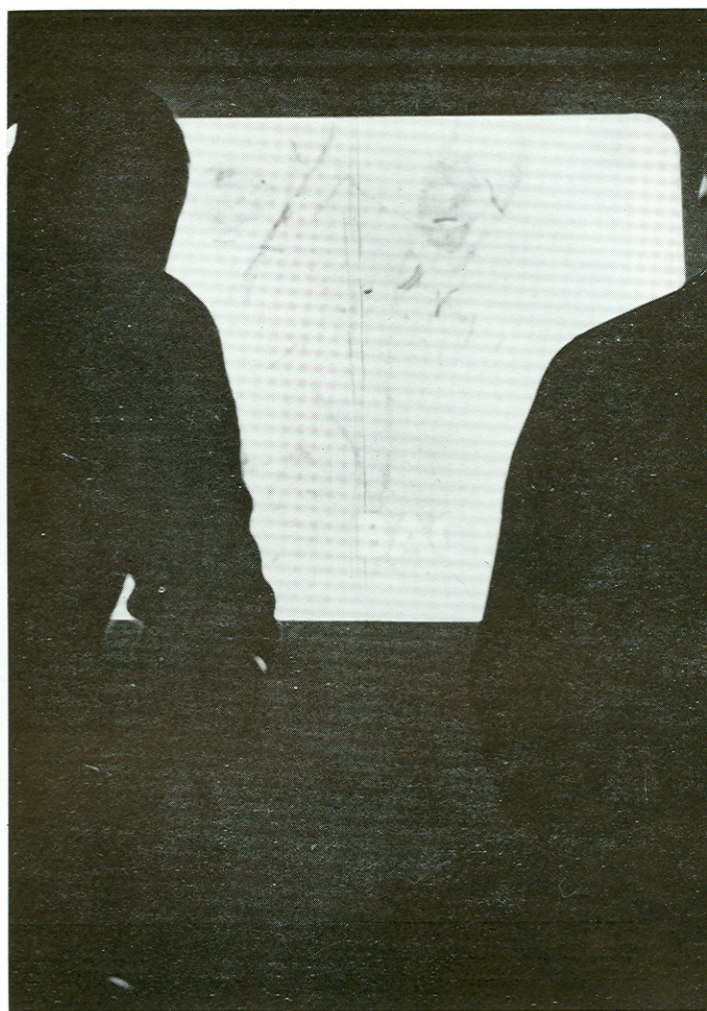

engineering as well as scientific and managerial skills, and is prepared for a profession which will enable him to work largely on his own initiative and under the supervision of a professional engineer, scientist or general manager.

The student in industrial education receives a broad background in his specialized field. Nearly one-third of the program consists of practical application courses; from these the student receives training in depth in his field.

Dr. Lowry enriches his lecture with the aid of a life-sized model used to better illustrate his point in his Advanced Physiology Class.

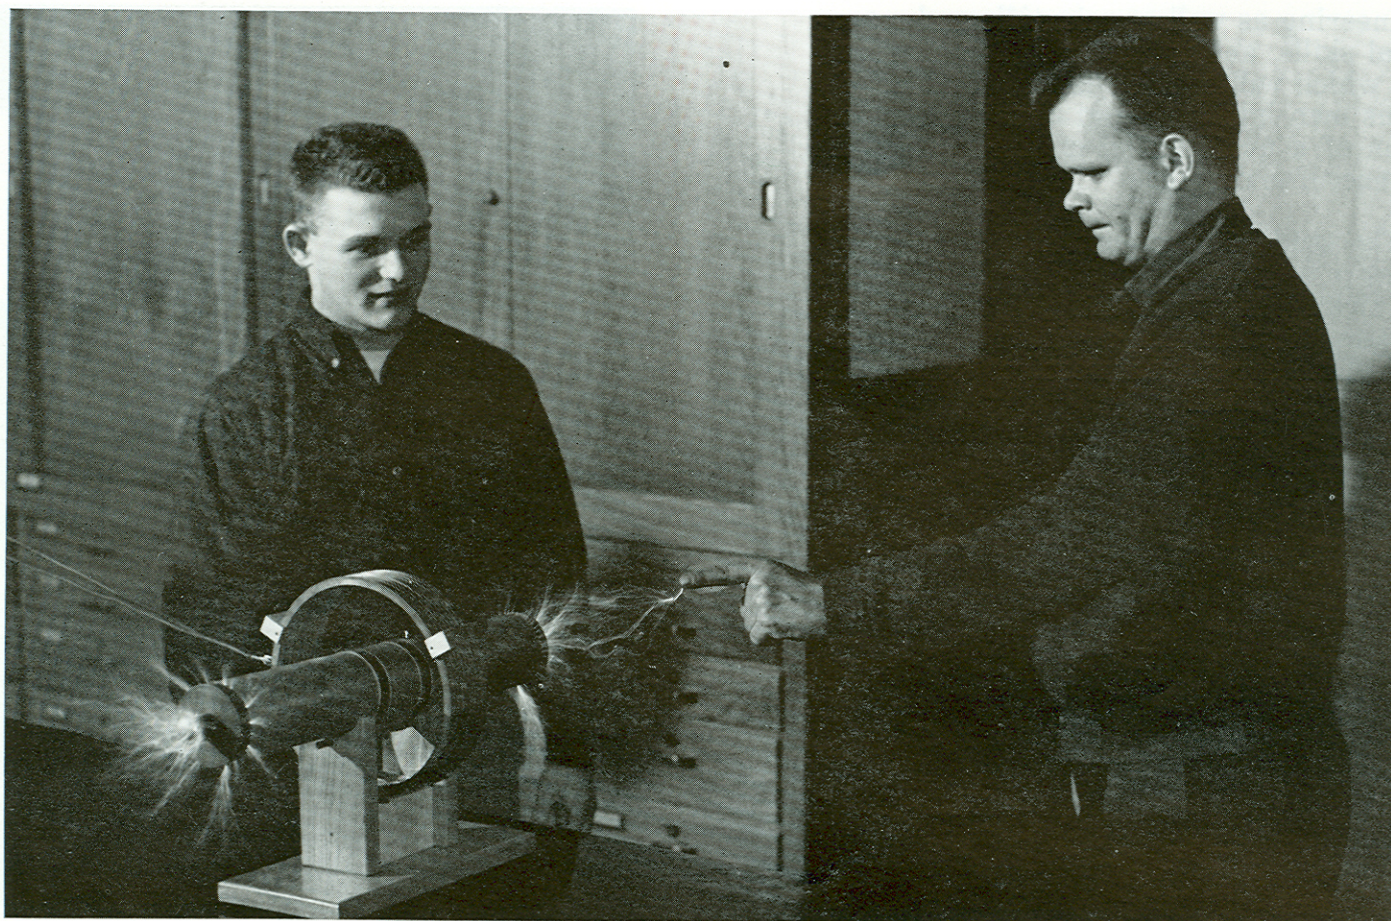

Previewing films prior to showing is an important part of Audio-Visual education. It also provides good practice in the use of the projector.

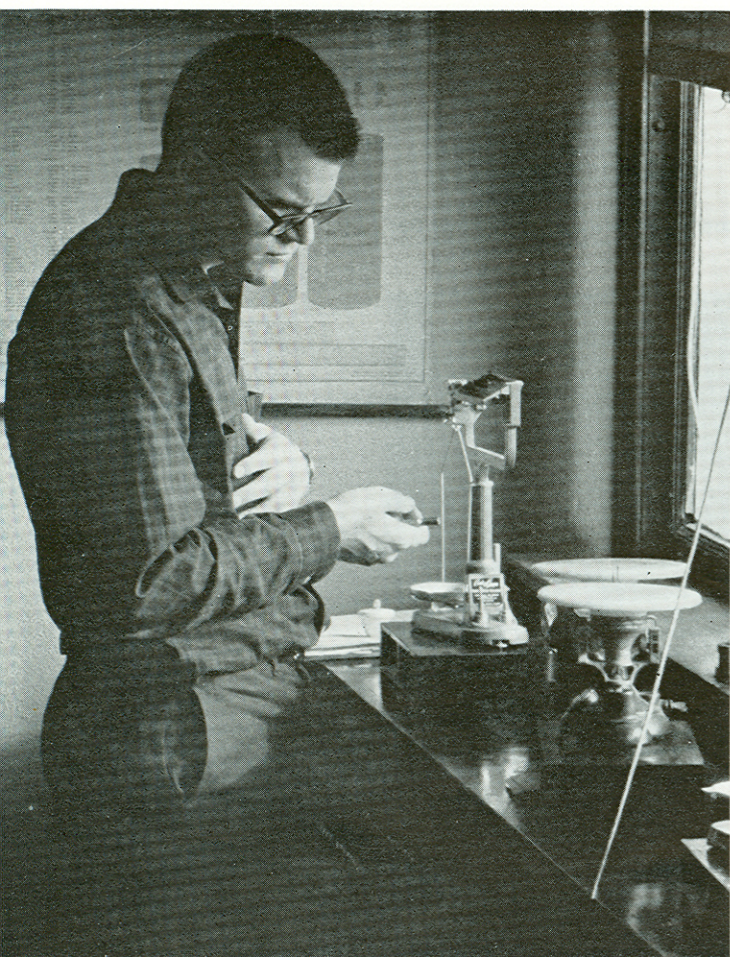

Fundamentals of Design classes enable students to test their creativity and provide great opportunities for all students to express themselves in color, texture, and line.

Don Kramp tests the brush effect of the Tesla coil for Darrel Dregne. This coil generates a high voltage, high frequency current which has spectacular effects but does not harm living beings.

Dennis Harms carefully studies results of a chemistry weighing.

A wide choice of specialized careers is open to the woman in the field of home economics. She may take courses to give her a bachelor of science degree in education, in various phases of business, in extension service, or in research work. The courses of study for each of these fields entail an extensive background within the specialized area and supplemented with a general background of academic subjects.

Graduates with a bachelor of science degree in the fields of home economics and industrial education may obtain their masters of science degrees at Stout and qualify to teach on the college level.

Nancy North and Sally Behrents put their hearts in their song as they practice for the spring concert with the Stout Symphonic Singers.

"Lives are enriched . . ." The art of speaking meaningfully is an important phase of college learning. Below, a freshman student is developing this art in the speech class.

Developing skills

Photograph negatives receive the careful scrutiny of Myra Schlegel as she examines results of her photography development before eliminating the less desirable pictures.

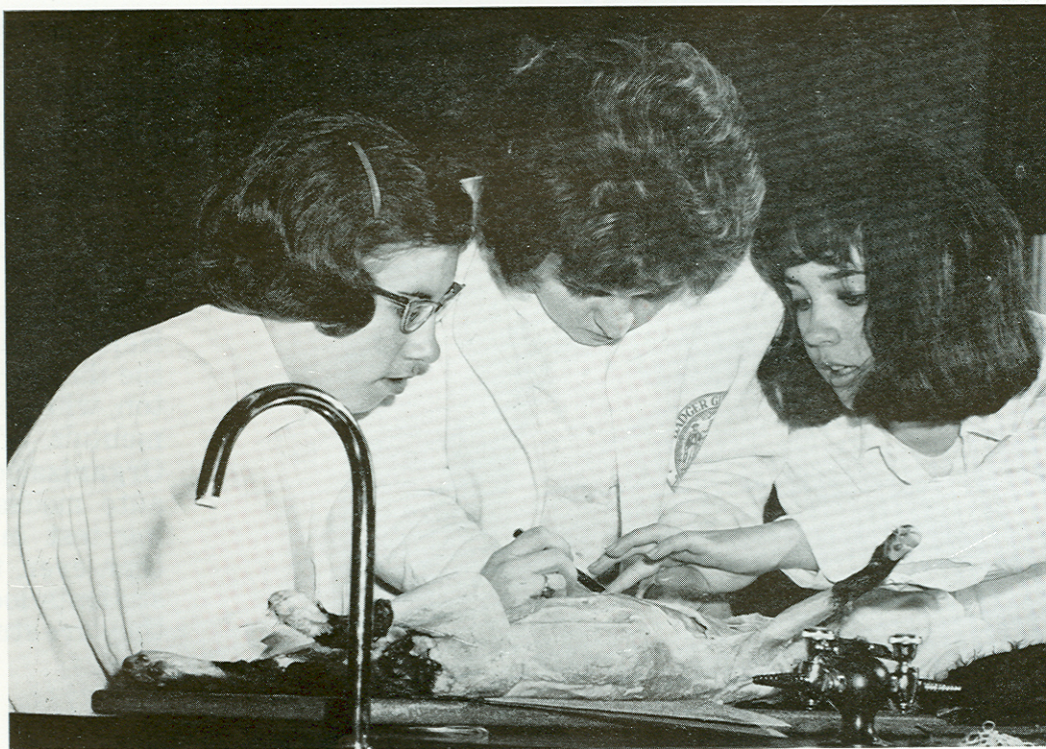

Jeanne Bokina is using this weaving loom to express her own creative ability and to apply learned principles of line, design, and color.

James Litvinoff and his partner practice surveying by working a transit problem for Trigonometry.

After the initial shock, Joanne Ahrndt, Barbara Godleski, and Shirley Fredrick found that dissecting a cat, to study its anatomy, wasn't so bad after all.

A place for study, reading, and research—the Stout library is always filled with students, like the one above, intent on completing their assignments. It was even necessary for the staff to open the library on Sundays.

During her reading, Marsha Hamilton, pauses a few seconds to gather her thoughts and relate materials read; she may also let her thoughts wander for a moment.

Patterns of learning

Along with the parties and dances, fun and friendship, sports and high jinks, a new spirit of seriousness seems to have pervaded the student body. These young men and women are in earnest; world events and expanding frontiers have given them a new sense of history and the will to become educated.

This means hard and prolonged study. Here at Stout one student may move from the dietetics kitchen to a discussion of Milton, while another, during a break in fundamentals of design, may be reading The Organization Man. Again, the student in auto mechanics may be pondering a coming test in psychology of learning. More than ever, the college library is filled with students looking long and hard at books—they are studying.

Sharing knowledge in group discussion

Several Stout co-eds hold an informal study session at one of the tables in the "stacks." The tables in this area of the library provide an excellent place for individual study, also, and are often used for this purpose.

A man's castle is his home, and a dormitory room is the home of most college students. Above, three young men enjoy an evening of relaxation and a game of chess.

Gymnastics coach, John Zuerlein, gets plenty of practice at home as he romps with his two sons.

MODES OF LIVING

A well-balanced college life

Life in the dorm is many things: long talks, hearty laughter, a few arguments, many lasting friendships, and countless memories. Here unity and loyalty are spontaneously developed through living and studying, and through activities in which all students may share.

To some of the upper classmen who want to express their independence, the experiences of apartment life appear intriguing. College approved housing in the form of apartments of all sizes and styles are available to groups of students wishing to live together, and to married students.

The experiences gained from these modes of living add to the richness of college life.

A favorite pass-time for girls in McCalmont Hall is knitting. Enjoying mutual friendship and some gay conversation, Alice Grundahl and Jane Braatin make progress on knitting their sweaters.

Jerry Haugh proudly dusts one of the many trophies on the fireplace mantle at the Delta Kappa house.

Apartment living provides girls with plenty of cooking experience as Kathy Buie, Chris Prideaux, and Lola Looker have discovered. It also provides plenty of fun, as groups of co-eds learn to live and share together.

Yes, of course Tom Krysiak is smiling! Who wouldn't be happy to escort queen candidate Barbara Hentschel at the Winter Carnival?

STUDENT CENTER

Center of College life

"Five spades!" is heard above the chatter of a bridge game in the basement cafeteria of the Memorial Student Union. The accents of animated conversation over cokes or from the ping pong tables—these are the sounds of college life.

Upstairs, in the lounge, a couple may sit next to the fireplace and dream of the years to come, while at the same time, in another corner, a small group of students are discussing tests, professors, fads, or the world's problems.

Yes, the Union is the hub of life at Stout. Even the faculty have their own "Cherry Lounge" for academic or informal talks over coffee.

Barbara Dickman snuggles a little closer to her date as they watch an exciting television program in the Student Union.

A place for gossip and friendly chatter—that's the Student Center. Above, Hank Winterfeldt and Sharon Kruger listen intently to a fellow student.

It's always fun to take a break; Myra Schlegel relaxes with a coke and a copy of the "Stoutonia" in hand.

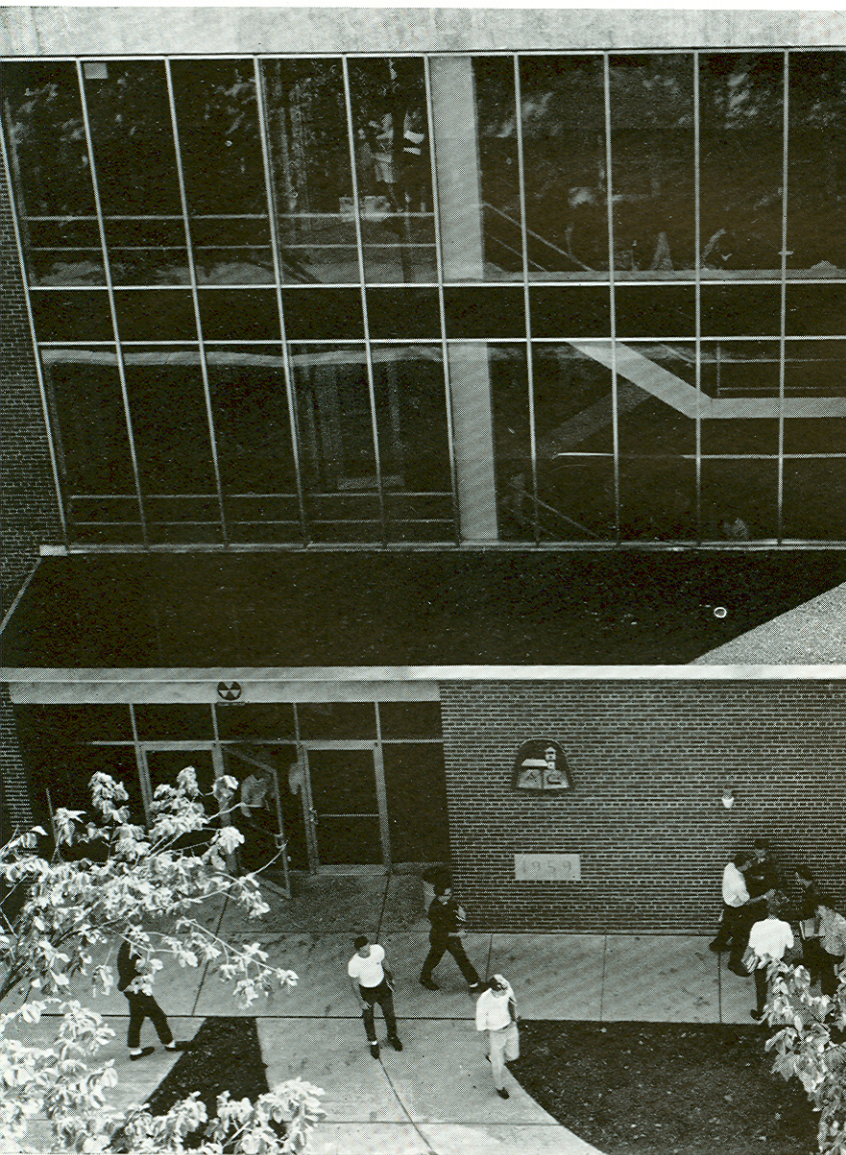

A cue ball is painstakingly aligned by a student who is enjoying a game of pool in the gameroom between classes.

Two co-eds chat leisurely on the steps to one of Stout's home management houses. Most home economics majors live in the home management houses during their senior year.

"The rhythm of college life keeps pace." The never-ending cycle of classes, study, and fun set a rhythm to college life that is unequalled by any other experience.

Beckoning with warmth, the Robert Pierce Library invites all students to use of its facilities. Aided by extended hours, week-end service, and its central location, the library is used much more extensively.

Two things that seem to go together: a college campus and a sunny autumn day—a scene at once peaceful and at the same time full of life—captured on the steps to Harvey Hall.

A history, a legend, a landmark of Stout State College—the old Tower stands as a symbol to all students, faculty, and alumni. This dignified structure, with its large clock and tarnished weather vane, is attached to Bowman Hall.

FAMILIAR LANDMARKS

The constant hum of activity on campus

It's "homeward bound" for this young man as he returns to Hovlid Hall after a day of classes and study. Hovlid, the oldest men's dorm now in use, is located across the street from Tainter Hall, making it the choice of many interested males.

The newest of Stout's dormitories for men, Fleming Hall, provides the latest in modern living. Freshman or upperclassman, American or Foreign student—all enjoy the companionship which can be found only in group living. Friends made in your first college "home" will never be forgotten. Dorm parties, dances with Tainter and Hovlid Halls, card games, hot showers, and those long, cold walks are the things which make dorm life so intriguing.

Perhaps the most used building on Stout's campus, and certainly the most popular, is the Student Union. It is a gathering place for eating in the cafeteria, for dances and parties, for holding important business meetings, or just for chatting over a cup of coffee. Here there is a little corner for everyone.

It's spring! Warm air and sunshine bring a mass migration to the out-of-doors. Occupants of Eichelberger Hall, heeding the invitation of spring, chat leisurely on the front porch of their old college home.

DORM LIFE

A growing college - - the old and the new

Tainter Hall, the largest dormitory on Stout's campus, houses all freshmen girls, and serves as the "headquarters" for the other dorms. The school switchboard is located in the rear of the lobby, and the Tainter cafeteria in the basement of the dorm serves both men's dorms as well as the occupants of Tainter. The Stout Tearoom is also located in the basement.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

In a time of change

While maintaining the proud traditions and firm principles the college was founded on, we are advancing through a period of rapid change toward innovations and improvements never before dreamed of.

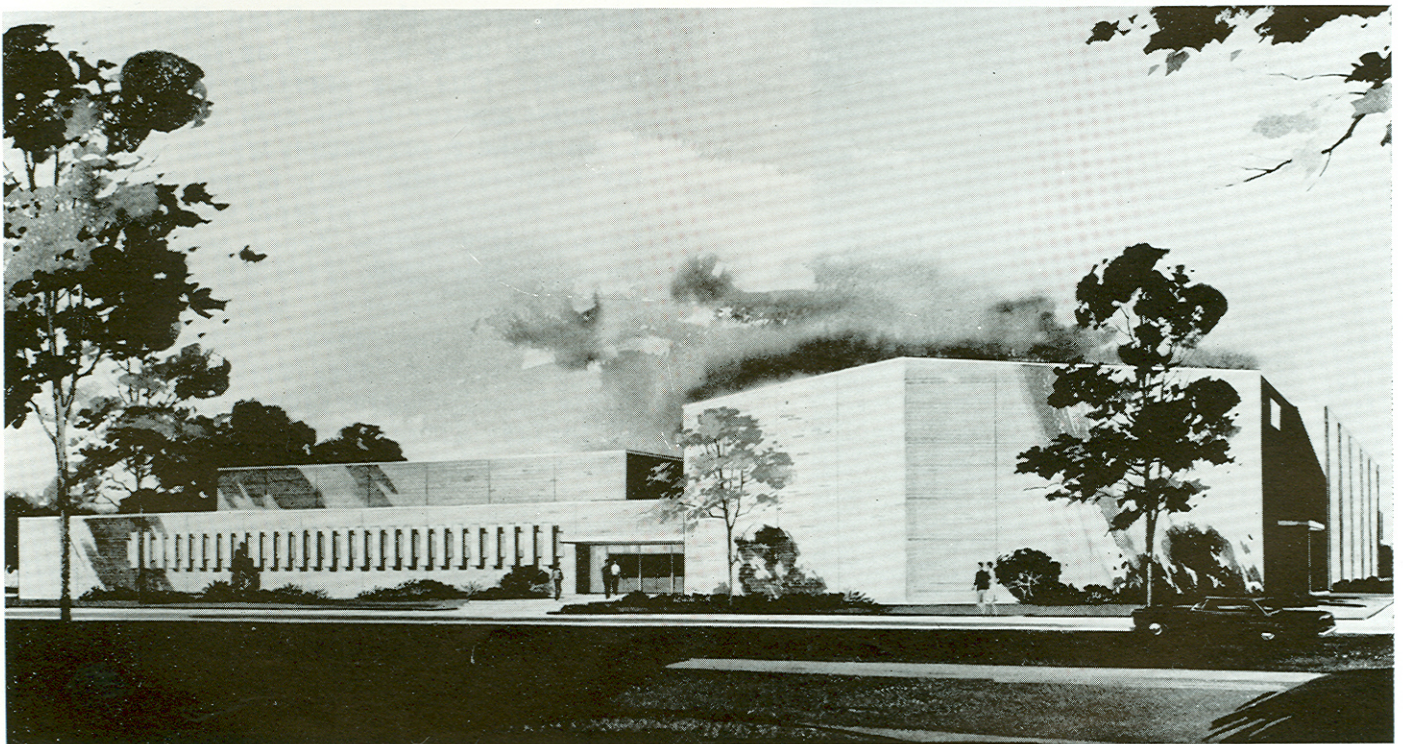

Architectural changes are evident throughout the entire campus. A new women's dormitory was recently completed. Construction for a one and a half million dollar fieldhouse began in July, and completion is scheduled for the fall of 1964.

In addition to the visible changes which are occurring on campus, the concept of Stout as a technical school is being broadened to include more of the liberal arts. With the adaption of new majors and minors and the strengthening of old ones, Stout is on the threshold of a new era.

Welcome back! Old friends and a new dorm, McCalmont Hall, greeting upperclasswomen on their return to Stout in the fall.

This drawing of the new physical education building, now under construction, was viewed with impatient anticipation by Stout students and faculty. The new gym, a big addition to Stout, will be ready for use in the fall of 1964.

A message

from our president

"There is a time for some things; and a time for all things; a time for great things, and a time for small things."

This bit of wisdom from Cervantes came to mind when the TOWER Editor asked for a brief expression in keeping with the theme of the yearbook — TIME.

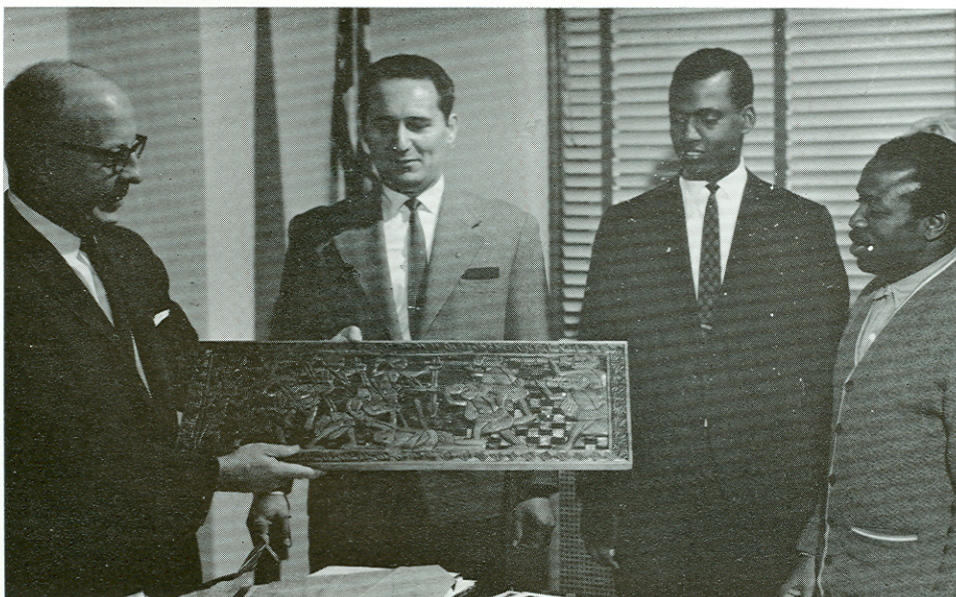

The concept of TIME is nebulous, but it has been a favorite theme throughout the course of literature. Cervantes had Don Quixote fighting windmills as a means of fighting the conventions of that time. He also expressed some maxims about time that have stood the test of time. For example: "Make hay while the sun shines," or "Rome was not built in a day." He also said, there is "nothing like striking while the iron is hot." He provided sage advice to college graduates: "Make it thy business to know thyself, which is the most difficult lesson in the world."

All of these thoughts apply to you and me as we look back at the few years we have been together at Stout State College. How well have we acted on these words of wisdom? This is a question which each of us must answer in his own way. However, I can make a prediction which, because of my position (and age), is not possible for you: I know from personal experience that twenty-five years hence you will page through this 1964 TOWER and recount many experiences in keeping with the thoughts of Cervantes. These pages will help you to remember that at Stout there was a time for some things, and a time for all things; a time for great things, and a time for small things.

In whatever phase you excelled, you will rejoice. Congratulations on your accomplishments, and best wishes!

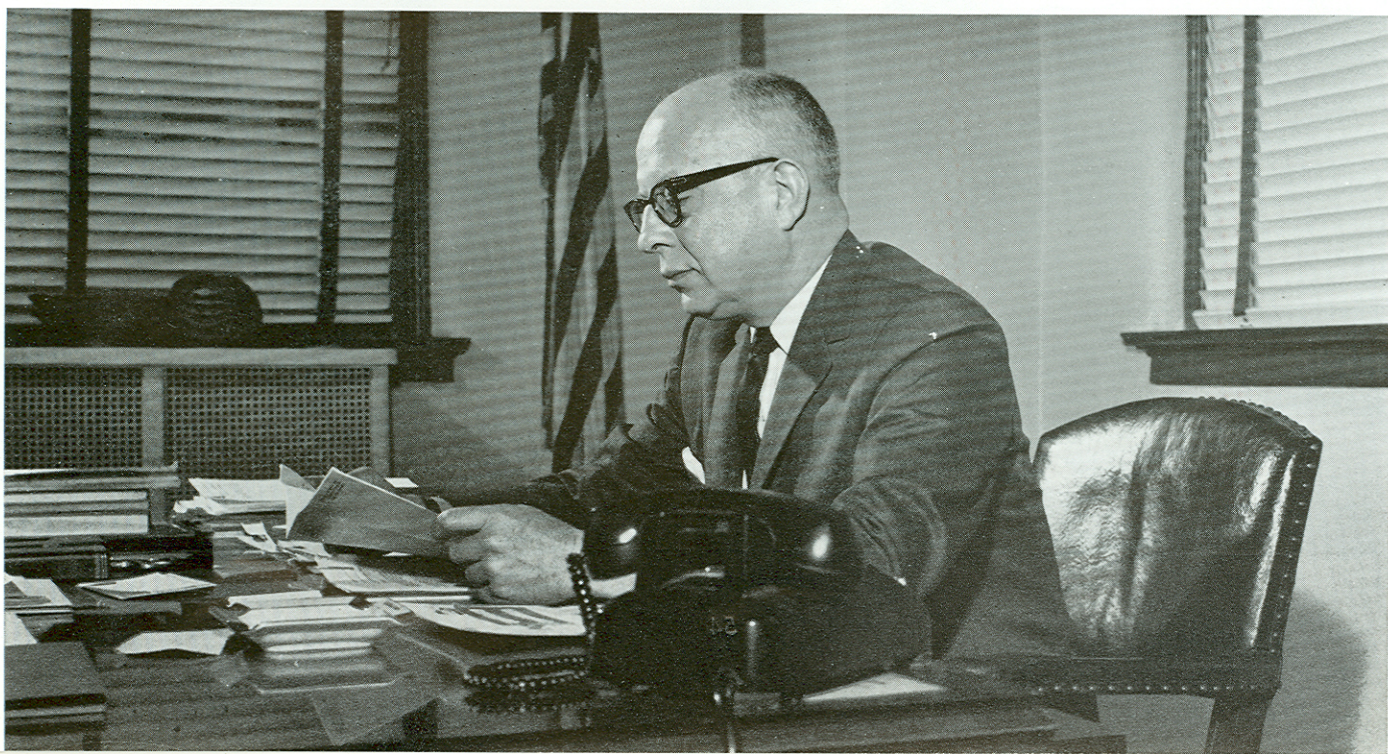

A wood carving brought by Sama Fohung from the Cameroons is presented to President Micheels as a gift from the International Relations Club.

President and Mrs. Micheels show great interest and enthusiasm for the team and create a stronger school spirit within the students at a basketball game.

Many long hard hours are spent at his desk by President Micheels as he strives to expand the opportunities and instill a greater interest in the students of Stout State College; through his efforts the college continues its improvements and growth.

JOHN A. JARVIS, Dean of School of Applied Science and Technology, Dean of Instruction and Director of Summer Session; Ph.D. University of Minnesota. The duties of President of the American Vocational Association gave him extra responsibilities this year.

JOHN FURLONG, Director of College Relations and College Development, Assistant to the President and Acting Head of the Department of Fine Arts; Ph.D. University of Minnesota. He is listed in Who's Who in American Education.

RALPH G. IVERSON, Dean of Students and Professor; Ed.D. University of California. The Inter-Religious Council and S.S.A. receives assistance from him.

E. J. SCHOEPP, Director of Business Affairs; B.S. University of Wisconsin. When the weather is nice he enjoys a good game of golf.

ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF

For authority, respect

With the continually increasing enrollment at Stout State College, the administrative staff finds itself faced with many new problems. The staff is pleased when it is able to guide the students toward higher standards and goals, and works faithfully to maintain the high ideals on which Stout was founded — industry, skill, and honor. The many areas in which direction is offered include liberal arts, college relations, applied sciences, teacher education, and the various phases of home economics.

Unselfishly the staff works to provide for revisions and modifications in curriculum and policies for the betterment of the school and student body. These cooperative and leadership qualities are noted and appreciated by those viewing Stout from around the world, and help maintain our reputation as being a unique college.

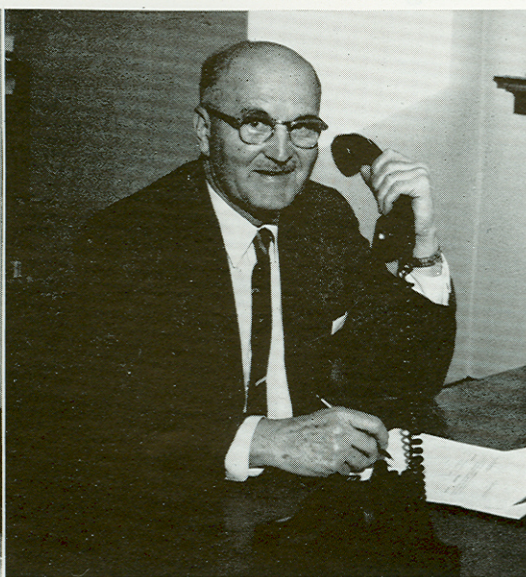

ROBERT SWANSON, Assistant Dean of School of Applied Sciences and Technology and Head of Department of Wood Technics; Ph.D. University of Minnesota. He is planning to publish a book on plastics later this year.

DWIGHT AGNEW, Director of Liberal Studies, and Head of Department of Social Science; Ph.D. State University of Iowa. He advises the International Relations Club.

GLADYS TRULLINGER, Acting Dean, School of Home Economics and Professor; M.S. University of Nebraska. She advises the Graduate Women's Club.

ERICH R. OETTING, Director of Professional Teacher Education and Head of Department of Psychology and Education; Ph.D. University of Wisconsin.

RAY A. WIGEN, Professor and Dean of Graduate Studies; Ph.D. University of Minnesota. He is the advisor of the Graduate Men's Club on our campus.

FACULTY

Teaching tomorrow's leaders

The seasons of the year come and go but the efforts of good teachers live on in the lives of the students — the new and better citizens of tomorrow.

Stout State College takes pride in its fine faculty and efficient and capable administration. The faculty, dean of men, and dean of women work hand in hand to maintain the high standards on which our college is founded. Foremost of their goals is to be of service.

In the classroom, the faculty constantly strive toward their goal by guiding the students. They provide excellent direction to help the student use his abilities and to advance in knowledge and understanding. Their enthusiasm in their profession also motivates the student to strive for perfection and good workmanship.

Outside of the classroom, the faculty devote much of their time to campus activities. A cheerful, interested faculty member serving as advisor, consultant, or patron is often the incentive behind an organization. Unselfishly they share their time and talents so that those less capable can have an opportunity to grow.

Evidence of our excellent faculty is seen in the continuing progress of our college and its students.

WILLIAM AMTHOR, Instructor of Industrial Graphics; M.S. Stout State College. A do-it-yourself home was one of his last projects.

HERBERT A. ANDERSON, Head of Industrial Graphics, and Professor; Ed.D. University of Missouri. He recently completed his new home on Lake Menomin.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

Inter-sorority relations

As its main objective, the Panhellenic Council strives to maintain on a high plane the sorority life and inter-sorority relations on Stout's campus. To accomplish this, many events are carefully planned throughout each college year.

The Panhellenic Tea which served to orientate all girls interested in rushing, began the year's fall season. Round Robin, which began the second semester rush, was another orientation for new rushees.

At Christmas time colorful cocktail dresses and the spirit of the holiday season were caught in the excitement of the annual Panhellenic Ball. This was one occasion during the school year that gave Greek women the opportunity to entertain their favorite dates.

To conclude the year, the Panhellenic Council brought the Greek Circle together once again at the annual Greek Picnic, held each spring.

Dianne Kernwein chats with a prospective sorority member at the Panhellenic Tea. The tea was held to orientate and inform freshmen girls with rushing and the sororities.

Joyce Delph and Diane Kernwein serve two members of Sigma Tau Gamma punch at one of the Alpha Phi Teas.

Guess who? Funny faces and a lot of fun marked the evening at the Alpha Phi - Chi Lambda Masquerade Party.

ALPHA PHI

Inviting you to an autumn tea

Happy smiles and gay chatter welcomed the Alpha Phi gals back for their fall picnic, followed by Homecoming preparations, and a whirlwind campaign for their queen candidate, Joan Nevin. Thus began another full and busy year.

Several faculty members gave inspiring talks at the various Standards Meetings throughout the year. The annual car wash, magazine sale, and Cardiac Aid were events that kept the Phi's in contact with other Stout students and Menomonie residents.

Amid the many activities of the Winter Carnival was the Sno-Ball Dance sponsored by the Phi's. The girls also entered in the ice carving competition and the spirited tug-of-war.

February ushered in rush parties, new pledges, and then the final initiation. With the senior banquet at the end of the year, the graduates were honored and bid farewell after an exciting and eventful year.

ALPHA SIGMA ALPHA

Men, beware!-Sadie Hawkins

The sisterhood of Alpha Sigma Alpha, aiming for the physical, intellectual, spiritual, and social development of its members, takes an active part in all activities on our campus.

Homecoming, the first big event of the year, finds the Alpha Sig's busily campaigning, serenading, building a float, and selling chrysanthemums.

Later, in early December, Alpha Sigma Alpha gets into the Christmas spirit by decorating bulletin boards at the local hospital and caroling at various places in Menomonie including the Dunn County Hospital and the North School.

The annual Sadie Hawkins week is ushered in by the Alpha Sig's early in February. It features many activities, including a dance and tea, and is climaxed by the crowning of the Pigtail Princess.

With spring comes Stunt Night, SSA campaigns, Spring Rush, Dinner Dance, and finally the Senior Hum, which concludes another year for Alpha Sigma Alpha.

Do you dare dance?

"Do You Dare Dance?" This was the name of the fall dance, sponsored by the Delta Zeta Sorority. Following the dance, the girls settled down to prepare for Stout's Homecoming. Their float, entitled "I Spy-der Defeat," won first place in the most humorous category.

October found the girls celebrating Founder's Day. Then, at Christmas time, the members were again busy making stuffed animals for the mentally retarded children at Northern Colony.

Amidst the rush of first semester finals, the D. Z.'s put the finishing touches on their quilt which they sold, by chances during Winter Carnival.

Ginger ale, root beer, pretzels, and popcorn marked the annual "Heidelberg Tea," sponsored by the sorority in the spring.

The annual Dinner Dance and the Senior Farewell Banquet brought the year to a close for the Delta Zeta Sorority.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

A personal visit

Charcoal blazers and skirts, with white sweaters identify the Tri Sigma's on Stout's campus. The Tri Sig gals began a busy Fall with their tea for new faculty members, followed by a visit from their national alumni secretary, Mrs. Emily Lee. The girls ended the month of September with the "Sweetheart Dance" which they co-sponsored with Phi Sigma Epsilon Fraternity.

Halloween brought the Goblin Tea with its decorative cookies and spiced tea. The Fall season was concluded with the sale of sewing hams, which was the Tri Sigs' biggest money-making project.

Christmas found the girls preparing a food basket for a needy family and making books for children in the local hospital.

Second semester brought preparations for Winter Carnival, rush parties, and initiation of new members. The Tri Sigma Dinner Dance concluded a fruitful year.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

Coordinating fraternity life

Once more the pledges appeared on campus as the Inter-Fraternity Council coordinated fraternity activities. Trying to promote a better understanding of mutual problems and ideas among social fraternal organizations, the IFC consists of two representatives from each body, serving in rotated offices.

After the fall informal dance, the next event was "All Frat Day," sponsored in the spring with inter-fraternity competition held in outdoor sports, followed by the spring picnic. Culminating the year's activities, the traveling scholastic trophy was awarded to the fraternity with the highest scholastic average for the year.

Fellowship and service

Many and varied are the service projects undertaken by the men who wear the blue and tan jackets. Outstanding because of his goals, a member of Alpha Phi Omega works diligently in serving his campus, his community, his nation, and his fraternity. A member finds a means of fellowship while participating in the numerous activities of Eta Kappa Chapter.

Service to the campus: ushering at activities, providing manpower for the SSA, and sponsoring the "Big, Little Brother Program" to aid incoming freshmen; to the community: aiding the Red Cross Bloodmobile, sponsoring "clean up" campaigns, and assisting in local scouting activities; to the nation: raising money for worthy charities; and to the fraternity: social functions such as the Ugly Man on Campus dance and contest, with the proceeds going to a worthy charity on campus, and intercollegiate fraternity activities.

CHI LAMBDA

Bands of brotherhood

Over the years the goal of the Chi Lambda Fraternity has been to develop and encourage high moral and ethical standards in each of its members; all Chi Lambda men work to maintain this standard, in school and throughout life.

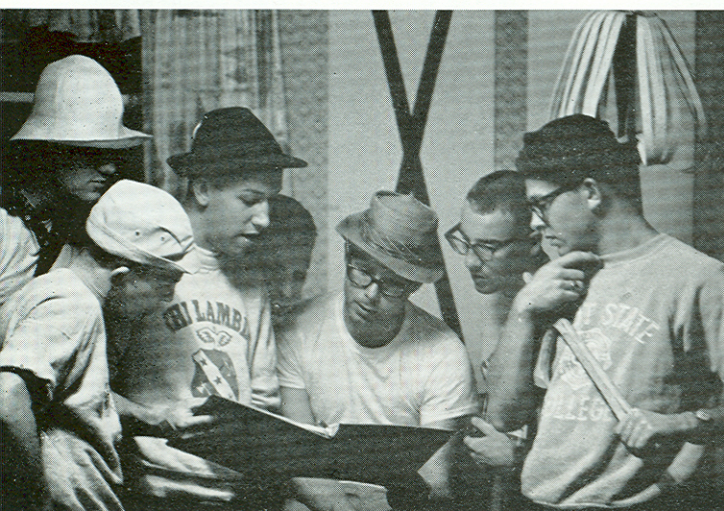

Chi Lambda also seeks to create a strong bond of brotherhood between its members. This is accomplished through the members' cooperation and participation in the various social events on campus. In September, when the moon was full and the weather still warm, the frat brothers held a street dance in the Stout Circle. Then, in March, the men of Chi Lambda busily prepared for the Mardi Gras Ball. The beautiful decorations attracted a large crowd, making the Ball one of the outstanding social events of the year.

Chi Lambda members, active participants in all other campus activities, are recognized by their gray blazers, gray and white jackets, and their battle axes.

DELTA KAPPA

Pledge princess ball

When the cry "hot coffee" is heard at Stout's football games, you will know that the members of Delta Kappa are offering assistance to frigid fans; social fraternities need income for their enjoyment. Coffee sales, candy sales, car washes, and dances contribute to the D.K.'s fund.

The fraternity's yearly events have been highlighted by the acquisition of a new house which is the hub of all fraternal activity. Tacky Drag was a big success and the annual D.K.-Alpha Sigma Alpha football game, as usual, was filled with fun. Christmas brought something new to the group. Aside from their annual Christmas baskets to needy families, Delta Kappa also organized and sponsored what is to become their annual Christmas caroling at the old folks home of Dunn County. Winter Carnival brought the D.K.'s a beautiful queen candidate, first place on their snow carving, and a trophy in the ice races. After this, plans were made for the annual Dinner Dance, concluding another year.

PHI OMEGA BETA

Oldest frat on campus

The Phi Omega Beta Fraternity has the honor of being the oldest frat on Stout's campus. It was recognized and accepted as a fraternity of brotherhood by the administration in 1931.

The F.O.B.'s are an active social group at Stout. Annually they present Duffy's Tavern, Herrschmidhaus Ball, and Stunt Night; the proceeds from Stunt Night are contributed to three of the school's scholarship funds. Members of the group also take part in Homecoming and Winter Carnival. Their humorous contributions to these events almost always adds another trophy to their case.

Phi Omega Beta has always been the first to promote sportsmanship, leadership, and the good name of Stout. The dedication to these goals can be seen by the work of many of its members.

"Did you say two lady?" Jerry Schneider serves this pretty co-ed at Duffy's Tavern night at the Student Union Dance.

The life of a pledge has many surprises, among them the experience of being watched every minute for a week.

PHI SIGMA EPSILON

Sponsoring talent nite

The Phi Sig's entry in the Homecoming Parade entitled "Whitewater's Putting on a Big Front" won second place in the most humorous category. Again, in the most humorous category, the Phi Sig's took first place with their devilish portrayal of "Charlie Brown and Peanuts" in the Winter Carnival snow carving contest. Their good luck continued during Winter Carnival weekend, and they won a trophy in the jalopy ice race.

One of the members of Phi Sigma Epsilon was elected as Stout's "Ugly Man on Campus" for this year. Rudy Zardin, with the support of his fraternity brothers, was happy to accept this title.

Another activity sponsored by the Phi Sig's was the annual Talent Nite which presented a number of Stout's many talented students in an evening program. Proceeds were presented to the Student Loan Fund.

Of course the usual activities associated with pledging and "Hell Week" also played an important part in the fraternal life of the Phi Sig's this year.

SIGMA TAU GAMMA

Hootenanny--a night of fun

Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity started the school year with their annual all-school mixer on October 12th. They followed up this event by winning first place with their float in the most beautiful category in the Homecoming Parade.

In November the Sig Tau's sponsored a "Hootenanny." Then, on December 6th, they held their annual "Rose Dance." Other events sponsored by the fraternity included the annual culture trip to the Twin Cities, for members and their guests, a hayride, pledge parties, serenades, and several house parties. The Sig Tau's also took an active part in various Winter Carnival events.

While social events are an important part of fraternity life, the men of Sigma Tau Gamma have not neglected academic responsibilities. During the past year they won the Interfraternity Trophy, which was given to the frat with the highest grade point.

Ted Giencke, Ken Faber, and Dave Lindow enjoy being chefs at the Sig Tau bratwurst feast.

HOMECOMING

"Remembering When"

"Remembering When," the theme for the 1963 Homecoming, set the stage for an exciting week-end which began on Friday evening with the crowning of Donna Leonhard as 1963 Homecoming Queen. Joan Nevin reigned as the Football Princess, and Kathy Towslee and Anne Fetzner completed the court.

A torch-light parade to Nelson Field followed the coronation; here the crowd cheered as the Whitewater letters were burned. The elated group then returned to the Union for the annual mixer.

Saturday's activities began with the Homecoming Parade, followed by the big event—THE GAME. Unfortunately, Stout was defeated, 35-0, and for the first time all week-end spirits were somewhat dampened. The gaiety of the crowd soon returned, however, and the annual Homecoming Dance climaxed a glorious and memorable week-end.

Radiantly beaming, Donna Leonhard is crowned queen of the 1963 Homecoming by retiring queen, Sharon Wyss. This was the happy beginning of a weekend filled with excitement.

Fall graciously favored Stout's homecoming parade with a day of warmth and sunshine. Led by the rhythm of the Stout marching band, under the direction of Dr. Odegard, the parade began an afternoon of festivities which was climaxed by the game.

CHEERLEADERS

Spirit builders

The Bluedevil athletes are cheered and inspired during competition by eight spirited, energetic students chosen to lead the cheering student body. This year's squad was formed around five returning cheerleaders: Donna Leonard, Linda Babl, and Sandy Carlson served their third straight year on the squad, while Kay Krueger and Tim Mero returned for their second year. Serving their first year as Bluedevil cheerleaders were Judy Kuns, Rudy Zardin, and Jan Kriewald.

An active year, with many games, preceded by many practices, kept the cheerleaders busy accumulating new and perfecting old cheers. Even holidays and vacations found several members attending sports activities or cheerleading clinics in or near their hometowns.

"Watch it guys!"—seems to be the expression on cheerleader Kay Krueger's face as she intently watches the Bluedevils struggle for their position.

FOOTBALL

Gridiron personalities

Under the direction of their new head coach, Max Sparger, the Stout Blue Devils opened their 1963 football conference play against a tough contender, Stevens Point. Fumbles, interceptions, and inexperience plagued the Devils as Stevens Point romped to a 32-0 victory.

Stout's first victory came at the hands of La Crosse as the Blue Devils picked off six Indian aerials. A key man was defensive halfback Henry Waters who intercepted three passes and set up two Stout touchdowns.

Superior turned a Bluedevil interception and a fumble into scores to defeat Stout 12-0. Facing a strong team, Stout was held to 84 yards. One key ground gainer, John Benavides, gained 29 yards in nine carries.

On a beautiful fall day, alumni and fans saw a strong Whitewater eleven spoil Stout's homecoming 35-0. The Warhawk's powerful ground attack had little trouble moving against the less experienced Stout line. The Blue Devils, who suffered their third conference loss, gained only 32 yards rushing against the rugged Whitewater defense.

A grueling gridiron battle unfolded as the Eau Claire Bluegolfs nipped Stout 12-2. Stout's two points came when defensive end, Tim Owen, nailed a Bluegold halfback in the end zone for a safety. The Blue Devils came alive in the second half and started several marches into the Bluegold territory only to be halted by interceptions or fumbles. Halfback John Benavides and senior fullback Bill Starks paced the Bluedevils' offensive attack with 24 yards apiece.

With less than a minute remaining, speedy halfback, Henry Waters, grabbed a long River Falls' pass on the Bluedevil 4 yard line and scampered untouched 96 yards to score the tie-breaking touchdown. Stout took an early lead on a nine yard run by Benavides. A rugged Stout defense held the Falcons on the one foot line, and it was not until late in the fourth quarter that River Falls recovered a Stout fumble to tie the game 6-6. The 12-6 win gave the Bluedevils a 2 win, 4 loss record.

Reserves Bill Sissel and Fred McFarlane concentrate on their team's progress during the 1963 Homecoming game.

Freshman quarterback Fred Glick gets a pass off just in time against the Oshkosh Titans, as Willie Ellis and other Bluedevils hold off the Oshkosh defenders.

Bluedevil battle line

In the final conference game, Stout battled to a 6-6 deadlock against Oshkosh. Stout remained scoreless until late in the last period when quarterback Fred Glick raced around end to tie the game. Top pass receiver, end Sidney Porch, caught two aerials for 60 yards and sophomore full-back, Al Babl, paced the ground attack with 45 yards.

St. Cloud capitalized on two blocked punts as they defeated Stout 14-7 in the final game. The Huskies blocked punts on the Bluedevil 20 and 4 yard lines. Stout's only touchdown came on a perfect pass from quarterback Fred Glick to Henry Waters. Glick connected on four passes for 71 yards, and Waters led the rushing attack with 31 yards.

Max Sparger, in his first year at the helm, guided the Bluedevils to a 2 win, 5 loss, 1 tie season record, and in conference play Stout finished seventh among the state colleges.

Halfback John Lorenz speeds around the left side, keeping away from would-be-tacklers long enough to pick up the much needed first down yardage.

HOME ECONOMICS

Practical experiences

Home economics includes much more than teaching high school students to cook and sew. Today, home economics is concerned with dietetics, interior decoration and housing, clothing and textiles, institutional management, research, family relationships, and family finances. The students who attend Stout State College receive a thorough background in all of these fields.

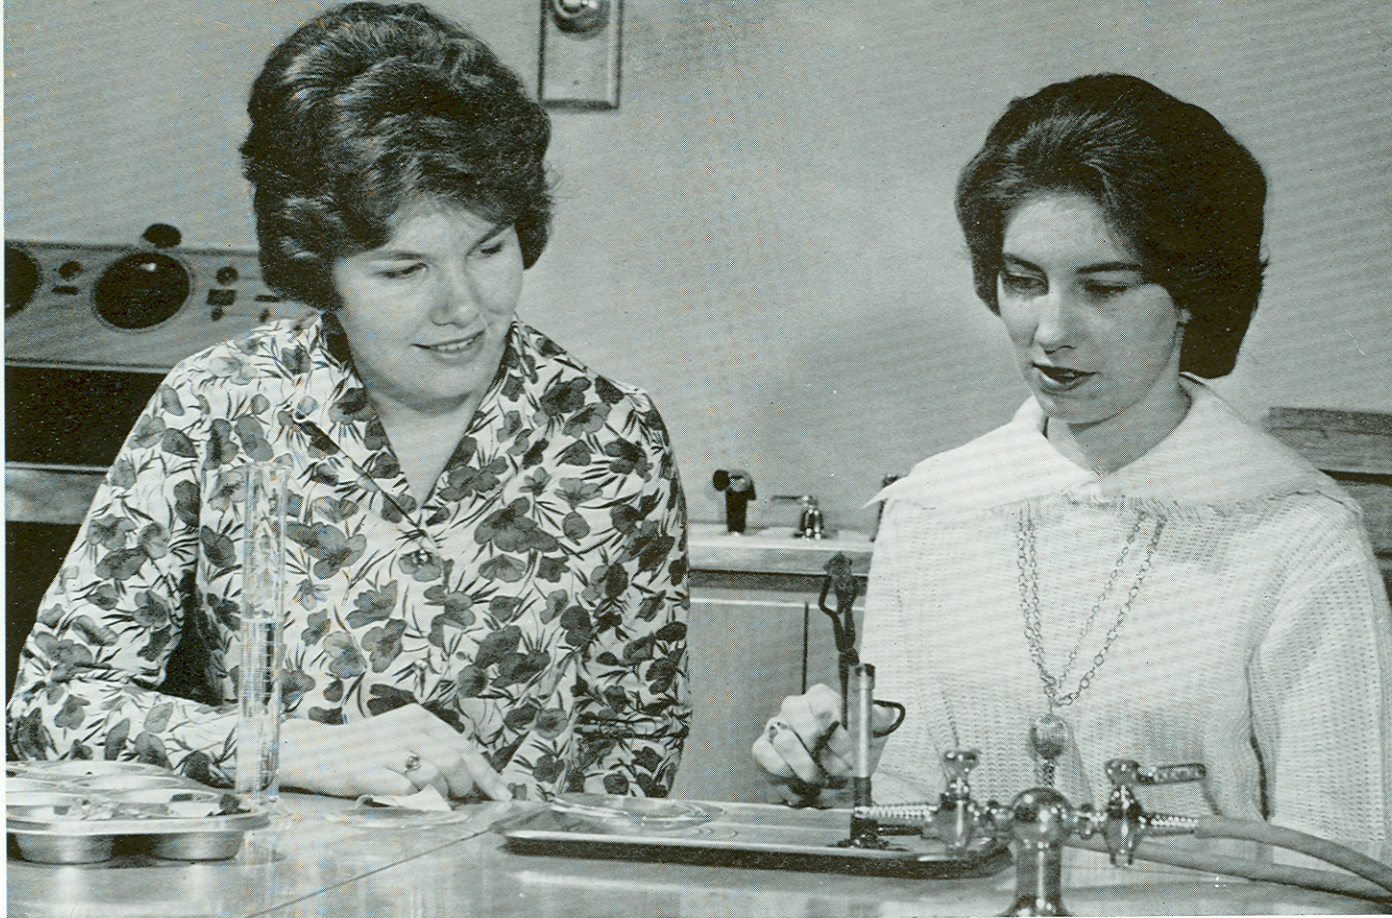

During her undergraduate career, the student gains knowledge through classroom study, outside research, and participation in pre-professional organizations. Besides these courses in home economics, minor fields of study may also be pursued in English, biology, art, chemistry, speech, or journalism.

Home economists are found throughout the world, in hospitals, department stores, schools, colleges, in the Peace Corps, in isolated communities, and in large cities. These women have found their place in the world; whether following a career or raising a family, they take pride in their work and they do their work professionally.

It's music time. Student assistants enjoy the activities of nursery school as much as the children do; below, some four-year olds have formed a "band." Home economics majors assist with nursery school as part of their training in child development.

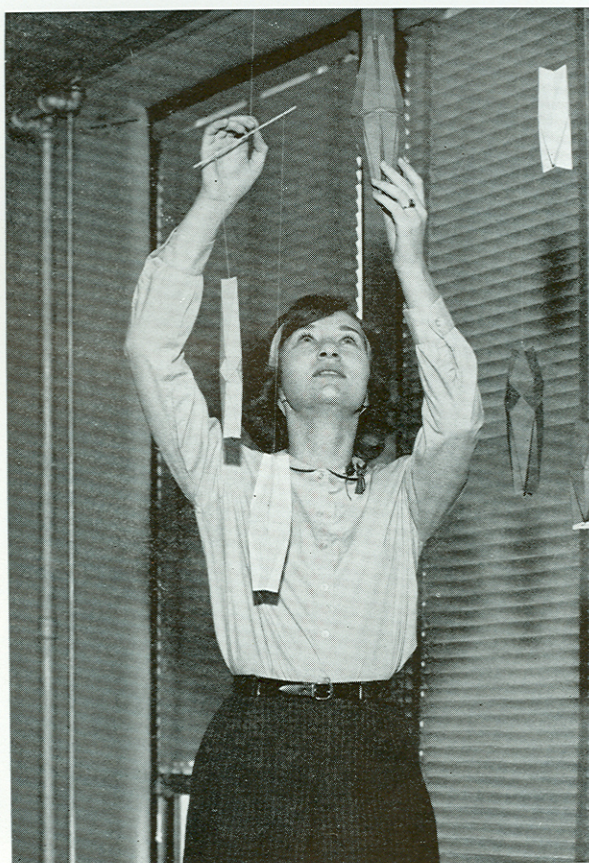

"It smells like burning hair," says Myra Schlegel, as she watches Donna Simpson burn a sample of wool. This burning test, to identify the odor of the fabric, how it ignites, and the residue, is one of several used to identify fabrics.

Marsha Hamilton finds the fadeometer in the textiles lab fascinating.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON

Professional attitudes

In 1933 a national professional home economics fraternity, Phi Upsilon Omicron, was introduced on Stout's campus. Since then Phi U has grown in membership and in its various professional and money-making projects.

The members of Phi U sponsored a "Recognition Tea," in the fall, honoring those girls who had been named on the Dean's List the previous semester. In December the girls prepared Christmas baskets for needy families and went caroling at the local hospital and nursing homes. Other projects for the year included a candy sale, the annual cake sales, and the upkeep of a bulletin board in Harvey Hall.

To further promote the importance of intellectual development and to encourage continuation in the field of home economics, Phi Upsilon Omicron gave a scholarship to an outstanding freshman girl at the Awards Day program.

The Tainter Memorial Theatre is intriguing to two members of Phi Upsilon Omicron. The group visited here in the fall.

ALPHA PSI OMEGA

Curtain call

Another exciting, productive year by Alpha Psi Omega presented Stout audiences with Romeo and Juliet, Ibsen's Pillars of Society, and Williams' Summer and Smoke. Members and pledges of Alpha Psi Omega participated in acting, set design and construction, lighting, and make-up which were necessary to produce these plays.

Zeta Beta is the Stout chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, the national honors dramatic fraternity, and membership is achieved through participation in the different areas of dramatics. Members of Alpha Psi Omega enjoy watching plays as well as producing them, and attended several outstanding plays in the surrounding area. In the spring, three awards were presented for the most valuable contributions to Stout theatre during the past school year.

EPSILON PI TAU

Professionally oriented

Gerald Jacobs and Bill Shukle comfortably seat themselves for one of the regular EPT business meetings.

Theta Chapter of Epsilon Pi Tau is Stout's national honorary fraternity for Industrial Arts and Vocational Education majors. There are more than sixty campus chapters of Epsilon Pi Tau.

Theta Chapter often invites professional men to speak at one of its bi-monthly meetings. Various practical and theoretical topics in the field of applied science and technology are usually presented. The members also enjoy expressing their own views on the trends in modern educational philosophy, while their advisers guide the discussion that follows the speech.

Although not a social fraternity, Epsilon Pi Tau does sponsor several activities for its members; members act as personal aids for the various speakers at Stout's Annual Industrial Arts Conference. Theta Chapter also offers a scholarship, and holds an annual car wash.

STOUT STUDENT ASSOCIATION

Channel for students

The Stout Student Association is a unique organization on campus; it is the channel through which the students and administration can work with and for each other.

The Executive Committee of the S.S.A. consists of the four officers. These students are elected by all-school voting in open campaigning. The last elections showed an increased interest in student leadership since the percentage of students who voted was higher than in previous years.

Besides the officers, the S.S.A. consists of 18 elected representatives and 3 advisors. The weekly meetings are open to active students who are interested in advancing academic and social standards.

The governing body is concerned with correlating administrative rulings with student ideas. This interest in the student's welfare is also supported by S.S.A. sponsorship of the People-to-People program.

A major part of the Student Senate's work revolves around social activities. Hours of planning and preparation are donated to make weekends like Homecoming and Winter Carnival memorable experiences. The S.S.A. also sponsors all-school elections, teas, dances, and other entertainment to stimulate the social life on campus.

One of the 1963-64 projects of the SSA was a new system of zoning the state for the Ride-Wanted and Riders-Wanted cards. Robin Rolf, Tom Freiwald and Joseph Whalen discuss the plan.

SSA representatives and faculty advisors meet monthly to discuss activities pertaining to all Stout students. Problems and new propositions are thrashed out at these meetings.

TALENT NITE

Special performances

On December 6th the fifth annual Phi Sigma Epsilon Talent Nite was presented before a capacity filled auditorium. Twelve acts were presented by Stout State College students, providing a wide variety of talent. These acts were judged on originality, poise, and showmanship.

Chosen as first place were the Jewish folk dancers entitled "From the Halls of Eichelberger." Pat Quall and Nancy Leeman won second place with their singing and guitar-playing session named "The Misfits." "Down Hollywood Street," Nancy Gigowski's impersonation of Hollywood personalities, placed third. The most outstanding individual actor trophy was presented to Anne Wilson, who did a humorous take-off on Phyllis Diller. Jerry Coomer and Carl Lang, the masters of ceremony, provided in-between-act entertainment.

Second place winners, Pat Quall and Nancy Leeman, strum out a tune on their ukuleles.

Slapstick comedy by three members of Phi Sigma Epsilon Fraternity is a hit at Talent Nite. Carl Lang, Jerry Coomer, and Dick Henry have a knack for laughs.

Anne Wilson puts her audience in stitches at her rendition of Phyllis Diller, a popular comedienne.

WINTER CARNIVAL

Winter deviltry

The 1964 Winter Carnival may have been one of the warmest in a long time, but this did not detract from the excitement and competition. All week the various groups serenaded the residence halls, campaigning for their queen candidates. With the crowning of Miss Linda Nyhus as queen, festivities were officially opened for the week-end.

Following the coronation came the exciting tug-of-war between sororities, and the ice hockey game between the FOB's and the Phi Sig's.

Saturday was another big day; the snow carvings were judged, and in the evening the annual Snowball dance was held. Here the traditional quilt was given away and the ski club's beard contest was judged.

On Sunday afternoon, Lake Menomin was again the scene of action for the Jalopy races on ice. The "Powder Puff" race gave the coeds a chance to show their talent and also provide an exciting close for another Winter Carnival.

Members of APO combine their efforts to produce a "masterpiece" snow carving for Winter Carnival before the deadline hour. Time rushes by as they struggle to reach their goal.

Queen Linda Nyhus and her proud escort, Dwight Davis, are presented at the "Club Carnival."

"Hey there, that's my ball!" shouts Frank Darzano, as he prepares to snatch it away from his opponent. This year's ice hockey game, between the FOB's and Phi Sig's was an exciting one.

Proudly displaying the winners flag at the ice races, Dwight Davis takes the Chi Lambda car for a lap.

William Ignaszak opens the envelope naming the 1964 Winter Carnival Queen.

STUNT NITE

Fascinating entertainment

Everyone always looks forward to the Phi Omega Beta fraternity's Stunt Nite as an evening of enjoyment and laughter. March 20 and 21 were the big nights this year as the FOB's sought proceeds for an annual scholarship awarded an incoming freshman athlete.

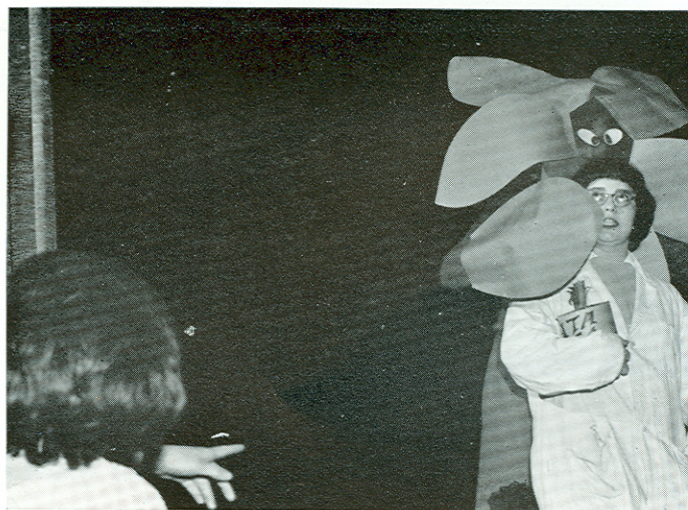

Each year three prizes are presented in the most humorous and most beautiful categories. The Alpha Phi sorority was presented with the trophy as most beautiful with Alpha Sigma Alpha second and Newman Club third. Winning in the most humorous area was the Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity with Delta Kappa and Sigma Sigma Sigma in second and third. A monetary award is also presented the three place winners. The best individual performance trophy was presented to Bonnie Nelson of the Delta Zeta skit.

The "singing nuns" of the Phi Sigma Epsilon Fraternity won first place at Stunt Nite for their imitation of this famous singing group.

Paul Werley, dressed as Java man, entertains the Stunt Night audience between acts.

The girls at Tainter Hall presented their stunt in the most humorous category depicting, in exaggeration, dorm life.

Winners of Stunt Nite proudly display their trophies for TOWER photographers. From left to right are Bonnie Nelson, outstanding individual award; Rudy Zardin, holding the Phi Sig's first place award for most humorous; Len Herrman, who accepted the DK trophy for second place in most humorous; Ann Hornick, holding a third place citation in most humorous for the Tri Sig's, Jeanne Gilberts, who accepted a third place citation in most beautiful for the Newman Club; Gail Diehl, holding the Alpha Phi trophy for most beautiful; and Mary Smarcina, who accepted the second place most beautiful award for the Alpha Sig's.

BEEP! Members of Alpha Phi Omega startled the audience as they "drove" on stage in this car to present "Right Around Home at Stout."

Tom Heller and Frank Darzano, masters of ceremony for Stunt Nite, entertained the audience as well as informed them of forthcoming stunts.

CONVOCATION

Aesthetic enjoyment

Fascinating entertainment was presented on Stout's stage this year in the convocations and lyceums, developing increased aesthetic values and providing fun and entertainment for all. From professor George Smith's enactment of the life and writings of Mark Twain to the modern jazz of the Mitchell Ruff Trio and the popular "hoote-nanny" music of the Brothers One came a wide variety of programs; from enactments of the past and presentations of the present came increased knowledge in the world about us.

Despite the fact that convocation requirement tickets were not issued, the students showed great interest in the programs, and supported them by attending.

Dr. George Smith, better known as "Mark Twain," fascinated a capacity audience with his dry humor as he relived some of the experiences of that great writer.

The string bass player of the Mitchel Ruff Trio sends out a twangy beat during an evening of jazz

The Mitchel Ruff Trio entertained the students at one of the lyceums with a jazz concert. The concert featured solo numbers by each of the musicians. The trio was well received by all.

Music from Broadway musicals, operettas, and operas was brought to Stout audiences by the versatile vocal-piano team of Gill and Otto.

The "Brothers One," consisting of the four Neldner sisters and Barry Johnson from Eau Claire, were a singing group who entertained during the hootenanny sponsored by the Sig Tau Fraternity.

Things backstage were never dull as the cast relaxed to more than one songfest led by Bill Rohde.

DRAMATICS

Personalities in perspective

Many long hours of work were unselfishly given by the members of Alpha Psi Omega on the scenery, costumes, make-up and the memorization of lines to produce outstanding plays for the student's enjoyment and relaxation this year.

In the fall they presented ROMEO AND JULIET, which was the story of mutual, absolute love and a secret marriage, mixed with murder, banishment and ultimate tragedy. William Ignaszak and Christine Martin, along with many other talented performers, helped to produce another successful performance.

PILLARS OF SOCIETY, which was presented during the winter, portrayed the stern, "proper" and upstanding family of Karsten Bernick, played by David Ferdon. The final play, presented this spring, was Tennessee Williams' love story entitled SUMMER AND SMOKE, a story about a puritanical southern girl and a worldly young doctor.

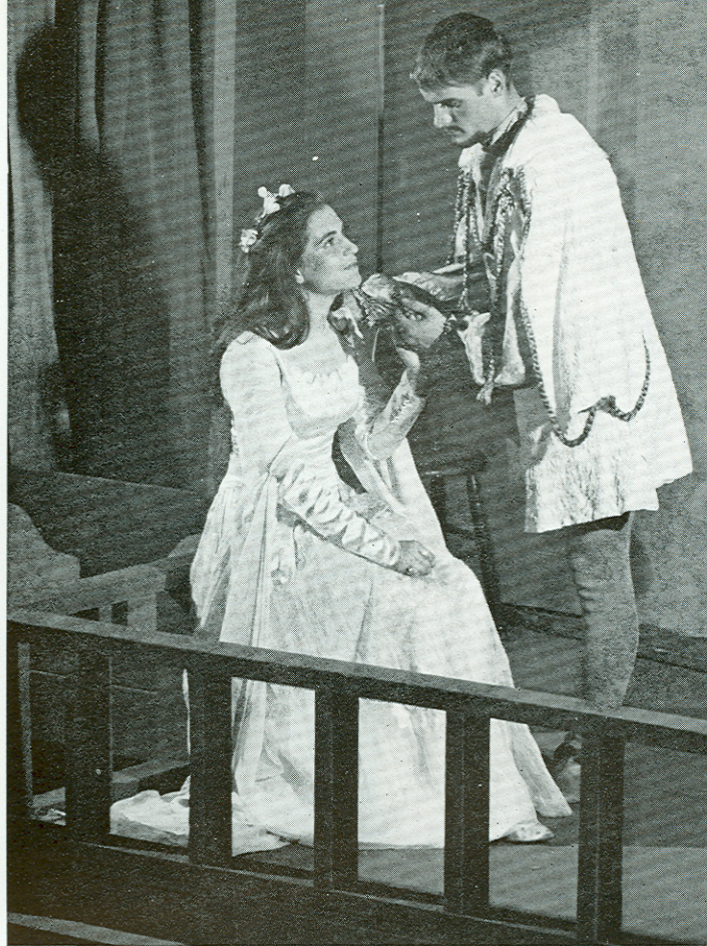

The intense emotion of this scene was one of the many stirring parts of Ibsen's "Pillars of Society." The winter play was presented by Alpha Psi Omega under the direction of Noel Falkofske.

Few people on the other side of the footlights know the hours of work which go into creating a successful play.

MUSIC

Great moments in music

Music on the Stout campus was further strengthened with the addition of Mr. Harold Cooke to the staff to assist Dr. Edfield Odegard. Both the choir and the band have profited from this change.

Mr. Cooke has charge of the Symphonic Singers which presented Handel's Messiah at Christmas. The spring concert was also enjoyed by the many people attending.

Dr. Odegard directed his efforts toward the band. The first program on the agenda was the Homecoming performance. After Homecoming, the band members found themselves actively preparing the annual Christmas concert and later the spring concert. Thoughts were not all on serious music though, for the pep band added to Stout's spirit at home football and basketball games.

We are all proud of the fine work done by both of these groups and have confidence that the music department will continue its good work.

STOUTONIA

For newsmen--hard work

The Stoutonia, the weekly school newspaper edited and published by the students at Stout, serves as an important and effective means of communication on campus. It aids in promoting an intelligent and informed student body.

Every Friday morning students anxiously await their copy of the Stoutonia to find out the latest school news. This paper provides information, concerning all campus activities — sports, lyceum programs, social events, club news, and a calendar of forthcoming events. It also aids in acquainting students with the latest projects and goals of Stout State College.

The production of the Stoutonia requires much work, but it offers any interested student the opportunity to obtain useful experience in the various phases of journalism. As a result of the time and effort devoted by all the staff, especially the editor, Kay Duebner, the Stoutonia is a source of pride to everyone on campus.

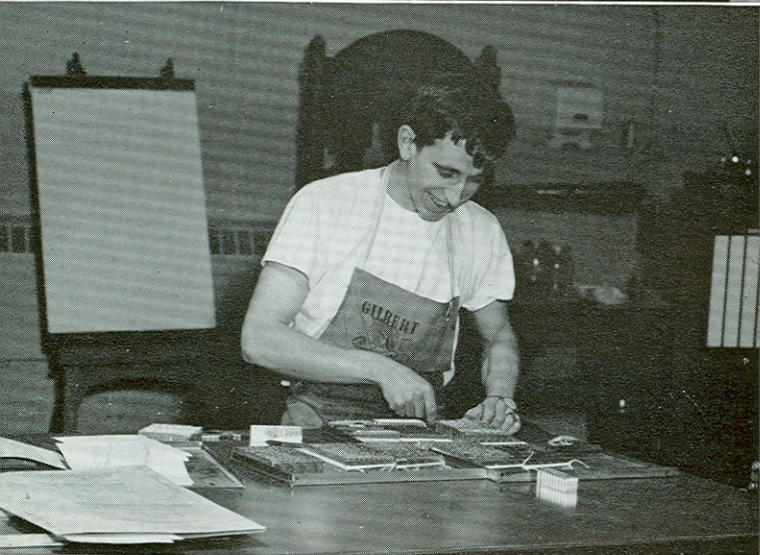

Editor Kay Duebner can see the worthwhile results of the Stoutonia staff's many hours of hard work as she looks over the latest issue of the Stoutonia.

One of the weekly jobs in producing the Stoutonia is that of folding copies. Running the folder is Larry Meicher, as Jack Klein observes. Roger Williams is collecting the folded copies for circulation.

Paul Aken sets type for an issue of the Stoutonia. This is one of the many important jobs which must be done before each issue. It is a job that requires a great deal of skill and accuracy.

Lloyd Whydowski gives a few pointers to Frank Petricek on making up a form for one of the pages of the weekly newspaper, the Stoutonia.

TOWER

A year's reflection

"Whew!" Many sighs of relief were heard as the workers of TOWER sent in the last bit of copy for publication. The one-time "impossible" task of completing the annual was finally accomplished - to the great relief of everyone involved.

This year the TOWER staff had a special challenge, that of living up to last year's annual which received the All American Award. Under the direction of Tom Heller as editor, new ideas and goals were formulated and executed with the help of associate editor, Chuck Lorence; production editor, Tom Krysiak; and literary editor, Donna Simpson. These people together with the staff, developed and expanded the main theme of "Time."

The photographers wasted no time in capturing the highlights of each memorable event as the year proceeded. Soon the literary staff began the big task of writing

"This looks good," comments Tom Heller, editor-in-chief of the TOWER, as he selects the color scheme and cover for this year's annual.

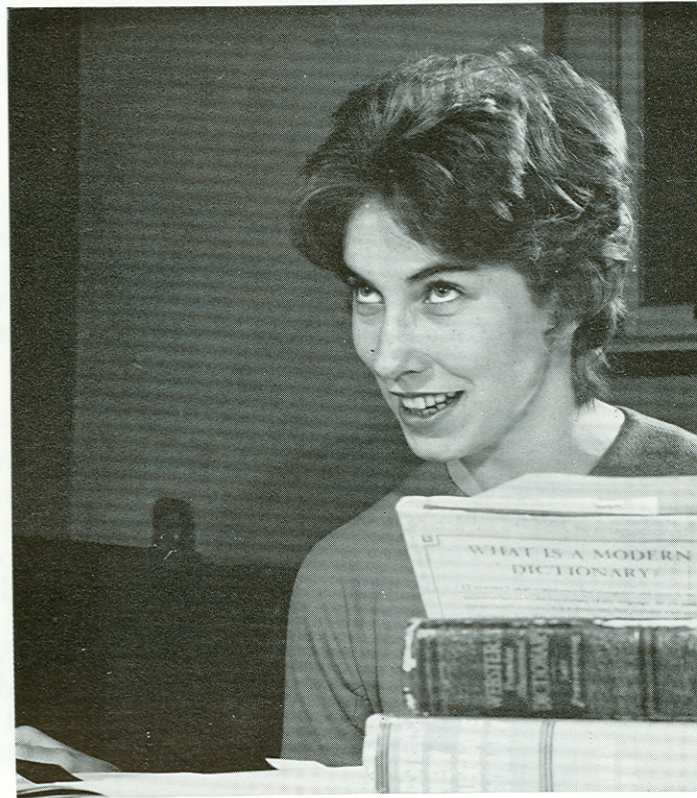

Much work is involved in the production of a yearbook. Below, Donna Simpson is pointing out some last minute details to Gwen Hock, Rosemary Anderson, Bill Dubats, Karen Nielson, and Margaret Glennon this year's section editors.

Tired? Tom Krysiak, TOWER production editor, rests his head on his hands for a moment's break from his busy job of planning the layout and assembling pictures.

Using the best possible references, Donna Simpson, literary editor, checks the work of her staff to make certain that it is "letter" perfect for the TOWER.

captions and titles. Production met the challenge of creating new and better methods of photography and layout in order that they might present to the student body a better, more organized annual.

Time marched on and there were deadlines to be met. At times the pressure seemed unbearable, but at last, after many sessions of proofreading, revisions being made, and trips to the engravers and printers, the 1964 TOWER was brought forth.

The staff is proud of this yearbook which they have produced. Those who will graduate see it as a great accomplishment and reward for work well done and experience gained. Credit is due also to the TOWER's advisors, Mr. Sather and Dr. Barnard for giving their time to the success of this book. At the annual TOWER banquet in the spring the staff and advisors gathered for the last time of this year as an organization, giving final approval to the yearbook.

Now, as the 1964 TOWER comes to you, the student, we of the staff hope that it will preserve many happy memories of your days here at Stout.

"Aw, we can beat this," says Chuck Lorence as he looks through an annual which competes against our TOWER in The Associated Collegiate Press Yearbook competition.

As the dates for deadlines draw near, the TOWER office becomes a busy place—writers, typists and proofreaders race against time.

"With the guidance of their instructors . . ." members of the TOWER staff are able to produce an annual which is the pride of Stout. Advisors are Mr. Sather, Dr. Barnard—this is his fifteenth year as advisor—and Mr. McMurtie.

Tom Krysiak points out some possible revisions concerning the layout of the year-book to his helpers.

ARTS AND CRAFTS

A gold key

Flashing blue and white buttons were once again seen on campus during the Homecoming season as members of the Arts and Crafts Club carried out one of their yearly activities: the sale of Homecoming buttons. Between committee work and pledging activities, club members held a banquet at Christmas, as well as an Easter banquet in early spring.

During the year each member completed an individual project by working on hand-made items such as billfolds, lamps, carvings, and copper work. A Gold Key and a Silver Key were awarded those who accumulated 150 and 75 points, earned according to the amount of time devoted to and the quality of design of the project. An annual spring picnic concluded the year.

DIETETICS CLUB

To improve nutrition

The Dietetics Club is a professional organization on campus which strives to improve nutrition, to advance the science of dietetics, and to promote education in these areas. Membership is open to all dietetic and institutional management majors.

This year the club broadened its many activities; a new project was the start of an annual newsletter. This letter was sent to all former dietetics graduates of Stout.

The annual fruitcake sale, which was a great success, with members selling over 500 fruitcakes, was followed by a Christmas Party. Then, with the beginning of second semester came the initiation of new members. During National Nutrition Week the club promoted the theme of the week with a tea, held in the Student Center.

Toward the end of the school year the club honored the graduating seniors with a dinner. The club also presented awards to several of its outstanding seniors on Honor's Day.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

Promoting our profession

"Shaping Our Image" was the general theme carried out by the Stout Home Economics Club, the largest professional organization on campus. To begin a busy year the club sponsored a style show entitled "The Curtain is Up - You're On." The remaining monthly meetings continued to convey the theme by using speakers from many different fields.

The club sponsored the UN Tea in the fall, the Green Tea in the spring, and a breakfast for seniors in May.

Through these varied experiences the purposes of the club are fulfilled. Programs were planned to develop skills and increase knowledge, widen cultural interests, develop professional attitudes and abilities as well as create understanding among the people of all nations, provide social experiences for many, and contribute service to the local community.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

International communication

Cha-cha-cha! This and similar rhythms accompanied the dancing classes offered by this year's International Relations Club. Dancing lessons were given to any student interested in learning some of the various American dances. The individual talent of some of the club's members was put to a test as the international students presented a program of varied entertainment to the students and faculty at Stout.

The main purpose of I. R. C., to promote better relationships, understanding, and communications among all international students, was accomplished in many ways. In addition to their own activities, the club also participated in other campus activities, including Winter Carnival.

Throughout the year several members of Stout's faculty spoke on various subjects at the I.R.C. meetings, thus creating a stronger bond of understanding between faculty and students.

INTER-RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

Modern trends in religion

In the belief that the educated person keeps abreast of significant events of the times, Inter-Religious Council provided students an opportunity to attend a series of convocations on Modern Trends in Religion.

A listing of religious affiliated groups on campus, their activities, place and hour of meeting, and plans for church night was prepared by this group and sent to all incoming students a month before school convened. This brochure replaced the former Council publication, Locate Your Church.

Inter-Religious Council is a coordinating board for the religious development, to administer religious activities, and to promote understanding of the relationship that should exist between higher education and religion in a democratic society.

LUTHERAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION

United in Christ

This year the LSA'ers put to good use their newly remodeled center. The chapel, glistening with its fresh paint job and new furniture, created an inspiring atmosphere for worship throughout the year. Worship services, including a communion service during Advent, united many hearts in a common purpose.

A choir, comprised of students, added interest to the meetings and contributed to the services at some of the local churches. Non-credit Bible classes, taught by a local pastor, gave students an opportunity to discuss issues of current concern in relation to the religious bearing.

The regular Sunday night supper meetings featured interesting programs and speakers for the enrichment and entertainment of all Lutheran students.

METALS GUILD

A common interest

The Metals Guild is an ever-growing organization composed of men majoring in the metals field. This group of men is enhanced by the knowledge of new products, techniques and advances which are taking place in the rapidly developing metalworking field. Objectives of the club are to enable the student to further develop skills in the use of tools, machines and products. Membership in the Guild is open to men who have a required number of metal courses and the proper grade point average. An important feature of the club is that it enables its members to increase their professional efficiency and social competences.

Under the direction of the club's advisors, Dr. Wiehe, Dr. Face, Mr. Halfin, and Mr. Gerber, members conduct meetings and take part in Homecoming and Winter Carnival. They enter a float in Homecoming parade and sponsor a car in the Winter Carnival jalopy race.

NEWMAN CLUB

Remodeling Newman House

The Newman Club float, a sinking ship, won the "most original" award in the Homecoming Parade.

Newman Club, an organization for all Catholic students on campus, initiated its new members in October, thus giving the newcomers a chance to participate in all of the year's activities. The main projects of the year consisted of completing a recreation center at the Newman house, entering a float in the Homecoming parade, and taking a cultural trip to the Twin Cities. Many students were kept busy cooking for the Mardi Gras pancake supper, communion breakfasts, Sunday evening suppers, and a supper for the international students.

During the Christmas season, the Newmanites went caroling at the children's home in Chippewa Falls. Toys were collected, repaired, and given to the underprivileged children to help brighten their Christmas for this year.

Religious literature was available to students at the Newman library, and daily Mass was conducted by Father Arthur Redmond in the Newman center chapel.

PEOPLE TO PEOPLE

A helping hand

Friendship, guidance, and international understanding are the goals set by the nationally affiliated, Stout State College, People-to-People Program.

The establishment of an organization constitution, a pre-arrival handbook for the international student, and international education for the student body, have been the achievements of this group during the past year. They have also sponsored a Big Brother - Big Sister Program and have had several coffee hours where they exchanged ideas, views and attitudes toward national and world problems.

As they strive for unity and understanding for all people, their feelings may be best expressed in these words by former President Eisenhower:

"One of the surest ways to bring about world peace is for the young people of all nations to know and understand each other."

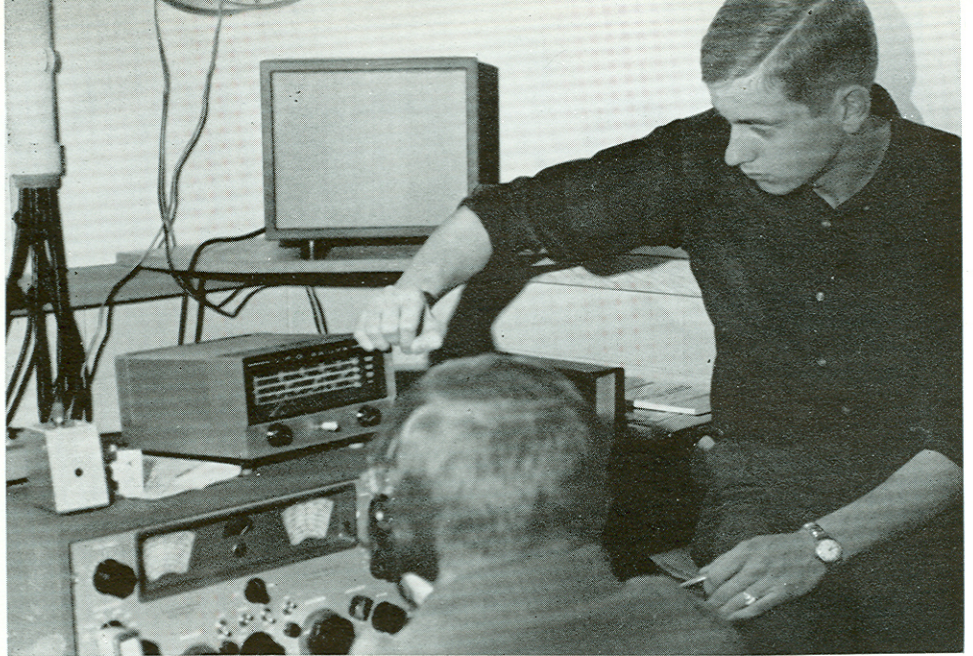

Greta Kvaal, an exchange student from Norway, captivated her audiences as she showed films and gave talks about her native country and her people.

RADIO-ELECTRONICS CLUB

HAM operators

Sparks flew again as the Radio-Electronics Club started another year by assigning certain club projects to each of its members. Included among these projects were the license committee which helps any member, who so desires, to obtain his Amateur Radio Operator's license, the public address committee that sets up and maintains the public address system for the various activities on campus, and the "ham shack" maintenance committee.

To further the knowledge of its members, the club showed films relating to the world of electronics and, whenever possible, introduced guest speakers from the electronics field. Members of the group also made field trips to various industrial firms.

Other high-lights of the year included the pre-Christmas dinner and the club's picnic in the spring.

RIFLE CLUB

Ready, aim, fire!

During the past year the Stout State College Rifle Club was active in two National Intercollegiate Leagues. They fired in 16 conventional small-bore pistol matches, competing with twelve schools around the country.

Throughout the year the club learned and practiced rifle and pistol safety through the instruction of several certified instructors in the group.

In the spring there were several shoulder-to-shoulder matches with local clubs around Menomonie; these included long distance shooting with the 30-06 caliber government rifles.

The mainstays of the club have been Haven J. Williams, who served as captain of the teams, and Paul Madary, one of the regular team shooters.

All of the activities of the club are under the affiliation of the National Rifle Association of America and the advisorship of Mr. Richard Klatt.

Entrusted with education

The Student National Education Association is the professional organization for college students preparing to teach. A local student NEA member automatically becomes a member of his state education association and NEA, with all the rights and responsibilities of associate membership in these professional organizations.

Programs for the local chapter during the past year included a mock placement interview, a tour of Stout's new guidance clinic, and a program about team teaching.

"S" CLUB

Aim for sportsmanship

The athletes on the campus are united in the S-Club for the purpose of developing themselves socially and scholastically. They provide example and leadership for the freshman athletes; they contribute a great deal to the college community through their activities as well as through their sports.

It is the hope of the members of this organization that the establishment of the new physical education facilities will promote their growth and effectiveness. Encouraging leadership, responsibility, and an atmosphere of good sportsmanship on campus, is the aim of S-Club.

SKI CLUB

Winter frolic

"Learn to ski and join the fun on the slopes" was this year's motto for Stout Ski Club members. With enthusiasm aroused by movies featuring skiing in the United States, the club eagerly spent the annual semester ski Trip at Mount Telemark. The winter months also found members of the club skiing on other nearby hills and slopes.

Winter Carnival, the favorite of winter college events, was ushered in with a whirl of excitement by the Ski Club. As a major attraction the "Jalopy Race" featured cars entered by different organizations for three trophies. Another event of the Winter Carnival was the baseball game, skied on ice, between the Eau Claire Ski Club and the Stout Ski Club. These various activities kept the skiers busy, and the annual spring picnic topped off a good year.

STOUT CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Inter-school fellowship

Stout Christian Fellowship, chapter of Intervarsity Christian Fellowship, seeks to deepen the spiritual life of the student and to increase his knowledge and understanding of the Bible.

Members meet weekly and, in addition, prayer meetings and Bible studies are also held from time to time.

Special conferences with Eau Claire, River Falls, and other nearby chapters are held in order to become better acquainted with their members.

S.C.F. sponsors two all-school films, a freshman get-acquainted picnic, a skating party, Christmas Card sale, a homecoming banquet, and other activities.

Members often spend time at Beartrap Ranch, a camp at Colorado Springs, Colorado. At this camp a summer training session and wonderful Christian fellowship fosters a deepening of their personal relationships to Christ.

STOUT TYPOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY

A working alphabet

Interested in printing? The Stout Typographical Society is an organization which concentrates on the promotion of printing. This group does all of the printing for the various clubs and activities on our campus. Also, as a favor to students and as a money making project for themselves, they hold a stationery sale once each semester.

The STS is set up in a fashion similar to the old guild trades of the Middle Ages. A member begins as an apprentice printer, and through his work, rises to the level of journeyman and finally to the position of a master printer.

Two big events of STS include the open house held during National Printing Week, and a three-day field trip to various graphic arts industries in eastern Wisconsin.

4-H CLUB

"Cocoa Clutch"

Stout's 4-H Club is made up of students who are, or have been, 4-H members at home. Joining the college club gives them a chance to continue their club work and to share ideas with other 4-H'ers. Highlights of this year were the annual "Cocoa Clutch," held during National 4-H Club Week, a square dance, and several meetings in surrounding counties to help younger members with their recreation and leadership projects.

Two Stout students allemande left at the "Harvest Hoedown" square dance, sponsored by the Stout 4-H Club in the fall of the year.

SYNCHRONIZED SWIMMERS

Water ballet

Splash-splash! The members of Synchronized Swimmers made frequent use of the Stout pool before the gym was razed.

Each year Synchronized Swimmers presents an annual water show. Last spring "Splash Along Broadway" was presented. Hit songs from popular Broadway plays were used as background music and as guides in developing the many acts. Because the gymnasium is being torn down, this year's show could not be presented. The members continued to practice new stunts and polish the old ones until the pool could not be used.

Synchronized swimming combines swimming with creative ability and co-ordination. Members modify basic techniques such as the back and breast strokes, and use different rhythmic motions in their interpretations. They engage in both simple and difficult underwater routines. The result is a greater enjoyment in swimming for all who participate.

UNITED CAMPUS MINISTRY

Students united in fellowship

United Campus Ministry is the new name of the former Wesley-UCCF organization. Throughout the year this group of students had many exciting experiences. New forms of worship were used at the Sunday evening services — for example, singing the “Lord’s Prayer” to the tune of “Waltzing Matilda.” Yes, this and other modernistic trends along with traditional aspects of church life have been analyzed by the members of UCM.

Besides campus activities such as fire-side chats with instructors, movies, dances, and participation in all-school events, many off-campus activities were also held. High on the list were a workcamp at Lac du Flambeau, a workshop at Moppett Theatre in St. Paul, state conferences and religious planning retreats.

The student center, which consists of a lounge, kitchen, and office, has been the scene of enriching social and devotional experiences for many students.

For a year of activity and a year of fun join W. R. A.! The Women's Recreation Association is an organization which promotes women's intramural sports and conducts some of the social events on campus.

This year's schedule included a series of sports ranging from volleyball and basketball to archery and softball. Also included in the list of events was a Christmas party, a Spring picnic, and a Gym-Jam.

Fund raising projects for the year included the sale of hot dogs at football games and college pets at Homecoming events.

An active year was brought to a close on the annual Awards Day when some members were presented an emblem, medal, or Stout letter for their participation and leadership in club events.

YWCA

Fostering friendship

To start the year the YWCA sponsored the Big-Little Sister program and the Big-Little Sister Tea for the purpose of acquainting freshmen with faculty and students. During the winter months the YWCA brought cheer to the local hospital patients by providing them with tray favors for the holidays and caroling at Christmas. The Thanksgiving Breakfast was a memorable event for all YWCA members. Bringing in the spring in full fashion was the Mother-Daughter Banquet; at this time Stout coeds entertained their mothers for the weekend.

Although the YWCA is a small unit on our campus, it is part of a nation-wide organization; it plays a vital part in the lives of its members, fostering friendship and service.

INTRAMURALS

A time for play

Intramural athletics gives men who are not of varsity caliber the opportunity to enjoy competition and physical fitness. The 1963-64 intramural season at Stout, directed by Glenn Hardy and Peter Giovanoni accomplished these ends with a full slate of competition in major sports.

The Fubars proved to be the outstanding football squad of the year, taking the undisputed gridiron championship by several games. In basketball, Third Floor Fleming won the independent title with a record of 9 wins and no losses. The Sig Tau squad walked off with the fraternal league title, after compiling a 9 and 1 record on the floor.

A low pass results in a loose ball, as Dick Rocklewitz dives for it while Tom Douglas tries to stop him.

Fast action and intense play typify intramural competition, as organizations battle for league standings.

The whole Stout bench watches intently as the Bluedevil five set up a scoring play. The entire team showed spirit and dedication as the Devils played to a 4 win 8 loss conference season.

BASKETBALL

Battling bucketmen

The Bluedevils of Stout State College finished their 1963-64 cage season with a 4 win, 8 loss conference record, while winning 6 games and losing 15. In spite of their unimpressive record, the Stoutmen were looked upon as a potentially powerful squad by many of their opponents. The squad consisted primarily of freshmen, whose lack of experience permitted opposing teams to win several contests in the closing seconds by small margins. Head coach Dwain Mintz started five freshmen as a rule, rather than as an exception.

In spite of their lack of experience, the Bluedevils beat archrival Eau Claire twice in conference play. The Blugolds bowed to Stout 84-66 early in the season, and lost again to the Devils 90-75 in the rematch. Other conference opponents to fall victim to Stout were Stevens Point, 72-64, and River Falls 78-72.

Bob Hayhurst, the only junior and the most experienced man on the squad, had his best year, so far, with the Bluedevils, seeing plenty of action and picking up plenty of loose balls for Stout. Sophomore Bill Ozga, the only other non-freshman member of the squad, hit his 100th point against Winona. Stout's 6'6" center, Jerry Kissman, was the most valuable freshman on the squad, leading his team in defense, in addition to being an important point winner. Willie White, 6' guard, pleased home court crowds often with his flashy speed and shooting. Chuck Krueger contributed much with his defensive work, and versatile Mike Willie White watches the ball as it heads for the basket on a free throw. Willie's style and form made him a consistent favorite of many fans.

Who's got the ball seems to be the question, as both teams watch for a rebound from Stout's Kissman.

Thompson was more than a challenge to opponents who tried to get a shot past him, or to stop him from shooting.

Freshman guards Frank Williams, Ken McBride, Jim Thomas and Sid Porch all added their efforts in sparking the Blue-devils to several winning rallies.

While coaches Dwain Mintz and Bill Moran did not come up with a winning season, they took the necessary steps in building a solid foundation for a winning team next year.

In other conference tilts, Stout fell twice to Superior and twice to La Crosse. River Falls edged out the Devils to win the first of two contests in the closing minutes, and Platteville took home a 95-89 victory. UWM and Whitewater both squeaked past Stout with three point victory margins.

In nonconference play the Bluedevils won just two games, overwhelming Northland 100-55, and defeating Winona 102-66. Stout lost seven other nonconference games, including powers such as South Dakota State, St. Cloud, and Mankato.

Chuck Krueger is double teamed by a couple of tall Blugolds, but he has no intention of giving the ball away as he looks for a man in the clear.

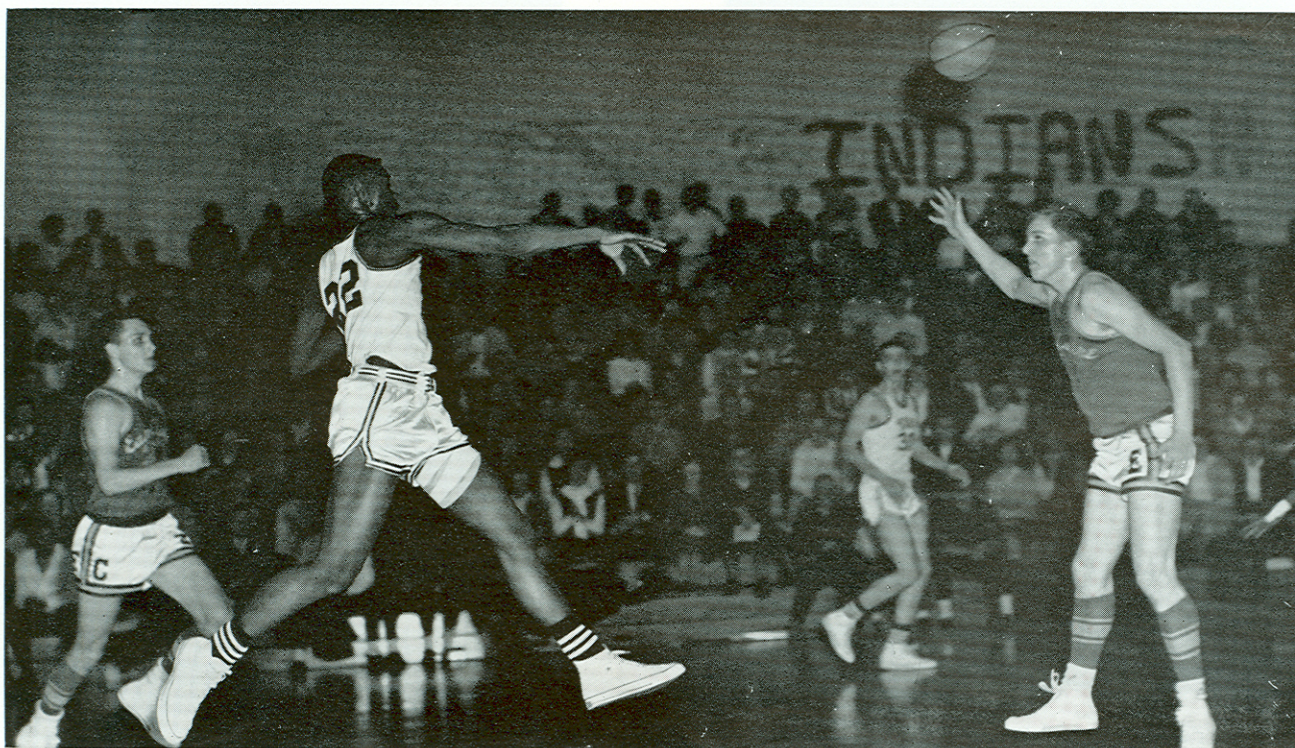

Willie White takes careful aim before firing one from the free throw line. Willie's accurate shooting added winning points in many games.

Judy Scharf expresses her disappointment with her team after the ball is lost to the opponent on a bad pass.

Cagers in action

Jim Thomas leaps high into the air to get off a long pass against the LaCrosse Indians. Jim's ball handling and shooting sparked the team in more than one game, but the Indians proved too much for the Bluedevils in this game, as they handed Stout a conference loss.

GYMNASTICS

Form, poise, and skill

The gymnastics squad showed definite improvement in 1964, its second year of organization. Squad members had opportunities to demonstrate their strength, agility and balance in three intercollegiate meets, including the Northwest Invitational in which they took fourth place.

The Stout gymnasts met La Crosse twice in competition, losing both but showing improvement over last year's score.

Student coach John Zuerlein proved to be the most valuable member of the team, and won the opportunity to participate in the NIAA Gymnastics tournament. Bob Koppes, Dan Smith, Byron Kessey, Rich Stoddard and Rich Roder also won points for the squad.

WRESTLING

Action on the mat

The wrestling Bluedevils of 1963-64 posted a 5 win - 5 loss dual meet record during their first season under coach Dennis Raarup. The Devils had trouble getting together to win meets early in the season, but finished much stronger, winning four of the last six contests on their slate. In addition to downing Gustavus Adolphus, Macalester, La Crosse, and Stevens Point, the grapplers trounced local rival Eau Claire 27-5 in their first meeting of the season, but were slighted 20-16 by the Blugolds just two weeks later.

Glenn Hardy did a fine job on the mat all season in the 177 pound division, and climaxed his season by nailing down a conference championship. Lee Alcock also had a winning season in the 137 pound class and took second place at the state meet. Tom Ott finished a successful season on the squad by taking a fourth in championship competition.

Tom Ott keeps his weight on his toes to keep his advantage over his Eau Claire opponent.

APPLIED SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY

Theory, principles, skills

Stout has often been called a unique institution. This is because of its specialization in Industrial Education and Industrial Technology. When a student enters Stout, he must decide whether he wishes a career as a teacher or a career in industry. As an education major, he not only receives courses that give him the background necessary to teach, but he also learns valuable manipulative skills. For example, a student may choose a course in woodworking; here he learns theories and principles concerning the teaching of this subject and also becomes proficient in his ability to handle woodworking tools. The student in technology will receive a wide background in the field of modern technology, giving him an opportunity to branch out in many directions. If he so desires, he may emphasize one particular field of industry, and therefore prepare to specialize.

Upon their graduation, Stout students are offered numerous job opportunities. Their broad education makes them desirable employees for firms throughout the world.

A favorite course for many Stout men is auto mechanics; in this course they are given an opportunity to experiment with and make repairs on their own cars, as well as learn the proper use of equipment.

FRESHMEN

A wide new world

Stout's largest freshman class arrived on campus in September; all were anxious to find out what college life had in store for them and were determined to put forth every effort necessary to get off to a good start. College was a step into a new life — a life where they would make new friends and broaden their experiences.

As the school year commenced, the freshmen soon found out what college life really involved. Those who thought it would be all parties and fun soon changed their opinions as did those who looked forward to nothing but serious study. In their orientation programs, they discovered some of the ideals and goals upheld by Stout students to successfully combine the social life with the academic life.

Homecoming provided the freshmen with their first opportunity to work together as a class. They showed fine spirit and cooperation in the building and burning of the letters representing Stout's rival.

Semester tests were soon upon the freshmen — the real test of what knowledge they had acquired. By this time a groundwork had been laid for their college education. Early in second semester, the freshman class participated actively in the Winter Carnival; six of the freshman girls were queen candidates.

The freshmen, looking back on their first year at Stout, see that they have gained much and hope that their future years at college will be equally as rewarding.

SOPHOMORES

Familiar faces

As the sophomores returned to Stout this year, they were warmly greeted by the familiar smiles of friends. They no longer felt insecure, but were now accomplished co-eds ready for another year of fun and hard work.

New class officers were elected and plans for the coming school year were made. Stout's homecoming was one of the first events on the school calendar, so the sophomores' first project was the making of colorful blue and white flags.

After Thanksgiving vacation, the sophomores settled down to complete all assignments due before Christmas. They also found leisure moments to decorate their rooms and doors in keeping with the Christmas season.

Following Christmas recess, many long hours of study were given in preparation for first semester examinations.

The second semester was also a busy one, highlighted by the Winter Carnival, Easter vacation, and the Junior Prom.

The end of the school year brought more cramming for finals, followed by sighs of relief as members of the sophomore class looked forward to a prosperous and peaceful summer.

Conquering new frontiers

"She's gabbin' again!" The sight of Nancy Perkins chatting on the telephone is a familiar one to the women residents of McCalmont Hall.

Decked in their "Dogpatch" clothes, Marian Kussman and her feller, Dennis Leonard, step off to a swingin' tune at the Alpha Sigma Alpha Sadie Hawkins Dance.

JUNIORS

Accomplishing goals

As the juniors look ahead, they see that they have only one year left in which to accomplish all the things expected of a college graduate. In their three years at Stout, they have matured and developed intellectually and now possess a feeling of real achievement. A sense of responsibility has replaced the carefree feeling they felt as freshmen a short time ago.

The first project which the junior class encountered in the fall was Homecoming. Long before the big weekend arrived, the juniors were busy planning for the Homecoming Dance and making decorations, centered around the theme "Remembering When," for the ballroom.

Winter Carnival time gave the juniors another chance to display their talents as they, as members of the many organizations on campus, entered into the contests for snow carvings, tug-of-wars, and the traditional jalopy race on Lake Menomin.

Spring finally came, with thoughts turning to romance and the annual Junior Prom. Every member of the class looked forward to this season and the opportunity to plan for, decorate, and enjoy this biggest dance of the year. Many hours were spent in preparation, but the great success of the prom made every minute of their hard work worthwhile.

This year, which has brought members of the junior class closer to their academic goals, has left its imprint in the minds of all. Each student began to realize more fully this year, the value of his education; each studied harder, taking on a more adult attitude toward his work here at Stout. Now each is looking forward to his final stepping stone in this chapter of his college life, the senior year.

Heave ho! Another shovel full of snow is thrown on the snow pile by Wayne Elinger, just before the snow carving begins.

With free time on hand, a couple finds it more enjoyable to discuss college life at the piano than over a cup of coffee. By that look on his face, he must be interested!

A representative of each sorority on campus gives a short welcome to interested girls at the Round Robin, sponsored by Pan-Hellenic Council. Joanne Kolander and Sandy Carlson listen to Mary Tyriver's welcome address to the group.

The end in sight

College memoirs

Displayed for all to see
We are awed by our glitter,
Secretly wondering if
We will achieve the heights
Expected of us.
We are separating
Each entering a different path,
Yet ultimately seeking the same goal.
Untried and unsure
We mingle nostalgia with our happiness
"But we have promises to keep
And miles to go before we sleep . . ."

Four years ago we trembled at the prospect of college, a new challenge for us, the inexperienced high school graduates thrown together toward a common goal: to achieve a wealth of education, and ultimately, our college degree. Now, after the trials, labor, discoveries, and experiences are over, we hardly believe that we have completed all of the requirements which loomed ahead of us such a short time ago. A college degree — such a priceless piece of paper, ours forever — never to be relinquished for mere money, for want of higher honors. It is ours to do with what we will. We can build on it, priceless though it is already; or we can reject all that our degree stands for. But we are an idealistic class; we want to soar. No longer together, we will reach our new goals separately.

We realize that now college is all over. Our days as the Class of 1964 at Stout State College are ended. We have successfully completed what we came for, a college education, and in part the future of the nation lies in our hands. New experiences, anxieties, and accomplishments await each graduate as we take our place, as many Stout alumni before us have done. Through effort and application, our success is reasonably assured. Now, as graduates of Stout, we will go to meet our new challenges, for "we have promises to keep, and miles to go before we sleep."

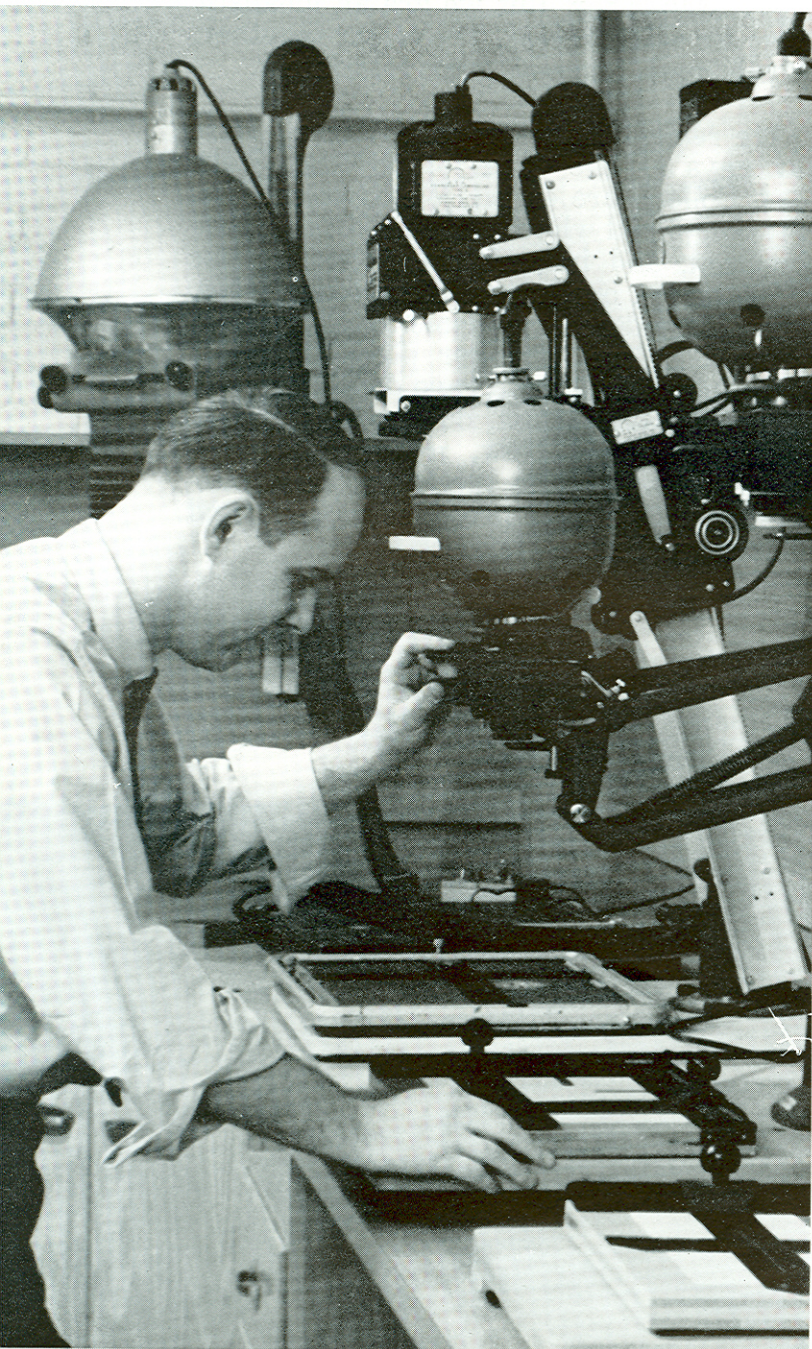

Mike Moran, vice president; Pat Johnson, secretary; Barb Campbell, social chairman; and Dick Henry, treasurer check events on the senior schedules for this year. Seniors are marking the time until the big event of their life occurs—graduation.

GRADUATE STUDIES

For further knowledge

The importance of higher degrees and graduate studies is increasing in our age; people of all professions feel the need for advanced learning. This year Stout's graduate program has continued in its growth, and several graduates of last year, as well as the more experienced professional workers, have been enrolled.

A Master of Science degree in various phases of home economics, industrial education and technology, audio-visual technics, and guidance is offered at Stout. Such a degree may be acquired by writing a thesis about original research in one's major area of study, or by supplementing one's regular course work in graduate studies with an investigation report.

Bluedevil two-miler Chuck White calls upon reserve strength as he drives down the home stretch in a meet against Eau Claire. Stout downed the Blugolds 102-29.

TRACK

Cindermen on the move

The fifth season of track at Stout State College saw the Bluedevil thinclads, under the direction of head coach Max Sparger, break five school records. The improved Bluedevils competed in a much improved conference as the Stout cindermen ran a total of five meets, but were rained out of a sixth.

Opening their season with determination, Stout took second place at the St. Thomas triangular meet, and trounced rival Eau Claire 102-29. La Crosse downed the Devils in a dual meet, but the Stoutmen came back to take a second place in the Bethel triangular. The season was climaxed in a state conference meet at Whitewater, but Stout failed to place in that contest.

The most outstanding athlete on the squad was Charles Busateri, who took nine first and three second places for Stout. Mike Blaeser scored in seven contests, and James Elliott in six. Distance man Del Schneider paced his way to eight scoring places for the season.

Taking an early lead, the Stout cindermen have Don McNaughton, Del Schneider and Chuck White leading the pack. Schneider kept up his grueling pace to win the event for the Bluedevils.

Versatile trackman Don McNaughton matches his whole body against the weight of the javelin as he prepares himself for a winning heave in one of the feature events of a track meet.

It's up and over, as vaulter Jerry Robers gives a final push to carry him over the bar.

Gaylord Herbst is having plenty of trouble trying to stop this Oshkosh runner at home plate.

BASEBALL

Title contenders

The 1963 Stout baseball squad had the most successful season in its history, as the Bluedevils played their way to an invitation to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship tournament, under the direction of coach Dwain Mintz.

In conference action, the Devils warmed up by sweeping double headers from Eau Claire and Superior for four straight victories. River Falls and LaCrosse both managed to salvage half of their double headers against the Devils, but Oshkosh swept the Bluedevils in a twin bill, becoming the only conference opponent to win two games from Stout. This gave the Devils a six win-four loss conference record.

Stout was selected to represent the Wisconsin area in the national college championships at Kansas City, but was eliminated in the first round after losing to Winona.

Gary Goldbeck proved to be the most outstanding team member, pitching five victories while hitting .275. Barney McCall led the squad in batting, with a .306 average.

TENNIS

Racket action

Stout's fleetfooted tennis team, led by varsity coach Harry Rosenberg and student coach Tom Krysiak, won three dual meets and lost only two during the 1963 season. Lettermen for the season were Tom Krysiak, voted most valuable player, John Zilisch, second most valuable player, Ray Gielow, Bob Hodkiewicz, Bob Werner, and Jim Zuelske.

Opening the season, the netters dropped their first match to River Falls. Less than a week later, the team came back to defeat Eau Claire 6-3. But victory was temporary as the Stoutmen were trounced 9-0 by Mankato. In two consecutive meets, Stout's racketeers avenged their earlier losses by upsetting River Falls 6-3 and Eau Claire 5-4.

In state competition, the Bluedevil tennis team failed to place, and La Crosse took the championship.

This year Tom Krysiak assumes the full coaching responsibility, and his returning squad expect to give their competitors a few surprises.

Tom Krysiak follows through a smash after reaching high into the air to hit it.

Gary Goetz's drive toward the pin from just outside will leave him with a very short putt.

GOLF

Performing on the links

Victory evaded the Stout ironmen in 1963, as they competed in five matches but failed to place first in any of them. The Stout golfers engaged in a busy schedule under coach William Amthor, playing five matches in two weeks.

Peter Riebau was the outstanding performer among the Bluedevils, consistently coming up with low scores for the team. Mike Harmston lettered in golf, while Gary Goetz and Jim Rebne each received an athletic numeral.

Stout's best performance of the season came in a triangular meet with River Falls and Winona; Stout scored six and a half points, only two points behind victorious River Falls. The season was climaxed with a conference meet which La Crosse won with a total team score of 632. The Stoutmen rang up 715 strokes in this match, and failed to capture a place, but gained experience in tournament play.

The grass on the green is thin in spots, as Gary Goetz sinks a five foot putt during the triangular meet with River Falls and Winona. Stout took second in the meet, just two points behind River Falls.
